A SAD TRAGEDY!

David Miller, a Civil War Veteran Kills His Son-in-Law Robert Roach.

ON PUBLIC HIGHWAY NEAR OSCEOLA

A Family Quarrel Was the Cause—Shooting Occurred Monday Evening, Victim Died Tuesday Morning at 2:30.

THE MURDERER LODGED IN JAIL

A few hot words between husband and wife and the calling in of a son-in-law to settle the dispute ended in a terrible murder at Retort Monday evening and now a young husband lies cold in the embrace of death while a gray haired veteran of the civil war fills a felon's cell in our county jail charged with the horrible crime of murder.

The particulars in this sad affair are about as follows : David Miller, who lives with his wife along the public highway between Retort and Osceola came home Monday evening a little before six o'clock in a bad frame of mind, said to be due to whiskey. He immediately started a quarrel with his wife regarding family affairs. He became very abusive and Mrs. Miller called to her son-in-law Robert Roach, who lives next door, to come to her assistance. He entered the house and separated them, and then started to leave. Miller then turned on Roach and started for his rifle threatening to kill him. Roach when he saw the gun in the old man's hands started out of the house and ran up the road with Miller after him. Miller fired at a distance of 75 or 100 yards the ball striking Roach above the right thigh and lodging there. Miller claims that he only fired once but the bystanders say he fired twice.

The wounded man was taken to his home and medical attendance in the persons of Doctors Henderson of Philipsburg, and Reed of Osceola summoned. Everything possible was done for the unfortunate man but to no purpose as death ensued at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Miller at once gave himself up and he was taken before Justice-of-the-Peace J. J. Collins at Sandy Ridge. The murderer admitted the shooting but said that he only fired to scare Roach having no idea that he would hit him. The Squire committed him to jail and gave him in charge of merchant J. W. Coffey of Retort to bring him to Bellefonte.

Coffey took his man to Tyrone and kept him there over night and Tuesday brought him to Bellefonte where he was safely placed behind the bars at Ft. Brungart.

David Miller, the culprit is 60 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches tall and rather heavy set, with gray hair and moustache. He is a veteran of the civil war having served in a Pennsylvania regiment.

Roach, the victim of this tragedy, is about 28 years of age. He has always borne an excellent reputation. Both men are coal miners.

Miller expressed regret at the terrible deed and said he wished he could take the dead man's place. He denied that he was under the influence of liquor saying that he had only two drinks of whiskey during the afternoon.

Died From a Snake Bite.

Mrs. William Druckenmiller, 40 years old, died at her home near Paintersville Sunday, as a direct result of a snake bite sustained more than two weeks ago. She had gone out to gather raspberries and while passing through some underbrush felt a stinging sensation in her right ankle but attributed it to a briar scratch and paid no further attention to it until later, when her little daughter, who accompanied her, called her attention to a copperhead snake which was still hanging to her dress skirt, it having struck the second time and its fangs became fastened in the cloth.

The wound soon began to swell and a physician was called who dressed the injury and it was thought all danger was passed until Sunday.

Made an Example of Him.

H. O. Shaffer, of Williamsport, was arrested by the "Sun" of that city for giving that journal a marriage notice of a young lady when no wedding had taken place. The information was voluntarily given by Shaffer as a "joke." Shaffer was fined.

—The Half Moon Grange will picnic next Saturday at the Quaker church about two mile west of Stormstown. An interesting program is promised.

THE DOINGS OF COUNCIL.

The Business Which Demanded Their Attention Monday Night.

The regular semi-monthly session of council met Monday evening at 7:30 with President Reynolds in the chair and the following members present: Knisely, Garrity, Kirk, Mallory, Cunningham and Derstine. Potter and Whittaker were the absentees.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved after which council proceeded to discuss the business before them.

Several letters were read from different financial agents throughout the country inquiring in regard to the issuing of the $25,000 worth of funding bonds by the boro. This matter was laid on the table.

Chairman Derstine of the Street committee made a report in regard to the work done on the streets during the past two weeks. Nothing of importance was elicited.

D. F. Fortney Esq., then read an ordinance prepared under the direction of the Street committee opening up Willowbank street which extends from the junction of Water and Logan streets to the southern border line between Bellefonte and Spring township. He also read an ordinance opening up Water street which thoroughfare extends from junction of Willowbank and Logan streets north to Lamb street. These roads though used as streets had never been legally opened as such by ordinance.

The report of the Finance committee was as follows :

Receipts :—

1902-June 7—Cash bal on hand	$ 542.81
" " 21—Taylor 99 Duplicate	100.00
" " "—Thos. Shaughnessy, fees	7.40

Chairman Garrity of the Water committee made the following recommendation.

1st—That the recommendation of Water Committee adopted by council July 7th, 1902, be amended so as to read : Payable to Collector on 1st day of Jan. 1st day of April, 1st day of July and 1st of October of each year.

2nd—That council appoint said Collector whose duty it shall be to visit each user of Water during the months of January, April, July and October and collect from him the amount due for the quarter ending on above date, pay the same to the Boro treasurer within forty-eight hours from the time of collection, taking his receipt for the same.

It shall also be the duty of said collector, while making his collections during the month of April of each year and at such other times as he, or the Water committee, may think changes have taken place, to collect the data from the users of water not having meters upon which to estimate the amount of each users dues. Said data shall be submitted to Water committee, which committee shall have power to fix the amount of charges against each user, subject to appeal to council.

3—That collector be bonded in a reliable Company in the amount of $1200.00.

4—That the Supt. of Water Works be appointed Collector.

5—That the said Supt. receive no extra compensation for his services as collector.

The Water street ordinance and repairs were discussed at length. The councilmen were unanimous in favor of building a wall all along the water side of North Water street. Col. Reynolds was in favor of building the wall on a straight line from the rear end of the Central tracks at the station to the High street bridge. This provoked considerable discussion. Dr. Kirk moved seconded by Garrity that Water street be opened up forty feet wide the whole length. The motion carried.

Mr. Knisely moved seconded by Mr. Derstine that the ordinances be accepted and published. It was so ordered. The property owners along this street must be given 10 days notice of opening of streets so that they can file an appeal if they so desire.

Dr. Kirk and Cunningham had a lively tilt over the brick wall that is being built around the reservoir. The latter wanted an inspector appointed but Dr. Kirk said they had a written guarantee from the contractor that everything was all right.

Action on the recommendation of Chairman Garrity of the Water committee was held over for further consideration.

The following bills were approved and orders drawn:

JOHN W. MACKAY DEAD

The Millionaire Died at His London Residence Sunday Evening.

WAS ILL FOR SEVERAL DAYS

Was the Last of the Four Bonanza Kings to Die, O'Brien, Flood and Fair Having Preceded Him.

WENT TO CALIFORNIA IN 1854

LONDON, July 21.—John W. Mackay, of San Francisco, who had been suffering from heat prostration since Tuesday last, died at his residence, on Carlton House terrace, at half-past 6 o'clock last evening.

Mr. Mackay's condition, as stated Saturday, had improved, but the patient had a bad night and Sunday morning a consultation was held by three physicians. Mr. Mackay grew worse as the day passed. He was unconscious most of the time and died very peacefully. The immediate cause of death was heart failure. The right lung was found to be congested and the symptoms indicated pneumonia.

Mrs. Mackay and her mother and Countess Telfaner were present when Mr. Mackay died, and Princess Galatro Colonna arrived from Paris an hour after her father's death.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—The news of the death of John W. Mackay in London caused quite a shock here, notwithstanding the public was in a measure prepared for it by the previous announcement of his illness. Mr. Mackay was the last surviving member of the bonanza kings Mackay, Flood, O'Brien and Fair, the other three having long since died.

For the past eighteen years Mr. Mackay has not been actively identified with the life of this city, but has passed most of his life in the east, making annual visits to the coast to look after business interests in this state and Nevada. On his last visit to this city, early last summer, Mr. Mackay completed arrangements for a landing place for the new Pacific cable, a project that he was very much interested in.

During a visit in 1892 Mr. Mackay was shot and slightly wounded by W. D. Rippey, who had a fancied grievance against him, dating from the stock broking days of Comstock. Mr. Mackay came to California in 1854, via Panama. He at once entered a mine, working with pick and shovel in the placers of the American river and at Downeyville. In 1859 he went to Virginia City, Nev., and began mining on the Comstock with varying success. His first real start towards success was made when he became superintendent of the Kentucky mine in Gold hill. In 1863 Mackay formed a partnership with Flood, O'Brien and Fair. In 1871 this famous mining quartette purchased the site of the Bonanza territory, north of the Ophir mine on the celebrated Comstock ledge. They began work on a lode abandoned by Sharon and other large operaters. The enterprise was a fruitful source of ridicule in mining circulars, nothing but financial disaster being freely predicted. Without losing heart or patience the four men continued, expending half a million dollars in prospecting operation. The ledge was struck and over $100,000,000 was added to the world's stock of precious metals. No accurate estimate of Mr. Mackay's holdings in this state and Nevada can be made, but it will run up into the millions. He was the owner of valuable real estate in this city and had owned mines throughout the state.

Almost An Accident.

There are some ladies in town today enjoying good health, who might either have been horribly mangled or possibly killed on Saturday evening if it had not been for the presence of mind of Conductor Ross Parker. After the 4:15 train had pulled out of the station these ladies were standing near the track engaged in earnest conversation and did not observe the Central train backing down from above. It was almost upon them when Ross seeing their danger sprang down the steps, grasped the rail of the car with one hand and with the other threw them back from the car. He was none too soon for in another moment a dreadful catastrophe might have occurred. The ladies were somewhat surprised at being so suddenly and unceremoniously shoved around, but when they realized the great danger they had escaped they were very thankful for Mr. Parker's heroic action.

DEATH OF WM. E. IRWIN.

Was One of Philipsburg's Most Prominent and Progressive Citizens.

In the death of William E. Irwin, which sad event occurred at his home in Philipsburg Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock of Brights disease, that city loses one of its most influential citizens.

He was born in Clearfield county and was 68 years of age. He was the son of the late Ellis Irwin, who was postmaster at Lick Run at the time of his death last December and who was the oldest postmaster in the United States in the point of continuous service.

Deceased had been a resident of Philipsburg for the past thirty-five years and was very public spirited. He was an insurance broker, trustee of the Cottage Hospital and Past Master of Moshannon Commandery, No. 691 Knights Templar. He was a school director for twenty years and took a deep interest in the schools; in fact to him is largely due the high standard of excellence maintained by the public schools of Philipsburg.

He is survived by three children, namely, Frank T., and H. Ruth at home and Mrs. C. B. Holly, of Beverly, Mass.

The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

School Children to be Scrubbed.

"Weehawken is making scrub women out of its school teachers. The board of Education decided today that if religion cannot be taught in the schools cleanliness, which the adage says, is next to godliness can be, Hereafter, between the hour for spelling and the hour for geography, there will be a course on soap and water, with examinations once a week. The teachers will be held responsible for the cleanliness of their classes, and that a bath be administered at least once a week, and oftener, if necessary, to every child in the school. This is not exactly what the teachers were looking for, but it is said they will not demur."

The above was handed us for publication by one of our readers, and we commend it to the consideration of our School Directors. There is no denying fact, that too little water is used by many of the pupils attending our schools, as any one will discover by paying a visit to them while in session, and we do not think that money could be spent to better advantage than by installing a couple of bath rooms in each of our two buildings. It certainly would be conducive to good health and comfort. Most of our scholars are sent to school clean and tidy, but there are others who bear the appearance of economizing entirely too much in the use of water. We would not advocate making washing machines of our teachers, but some plan might be adopted for having the scholars do the work themselves.

During the summer vacation we hope the Directors will take up this matter and decide to inaugurate this reform. As the Council would put a water meter at each building there would be considerable rivalry to see which school would consume the most water, which would be an incentive to the young idea to use as much as possible. This would not only keep the children cleaner, but would add to the revenue of the water Committee, besides inculcating lessons of neatness and cleanliness in the minds of the scholars.

Our Street Lights.

At half-past eight o'clock Sunday night the sky was overcast by heavy clouds and the streets were so dark that it was difficult to walk with either safety or comfort, the churches were out and the people had to stumble home as best they could.

We wondered whether the electric light man was asleep, but at twenty minutes of nine the lights were turned on. This was one-half hour later than they should have been lighted, for on Sunday, when there are no lights in the stores and so many ladies on the streets, the lamps ought to be lighted early.

In the name of our citizens we protest against such an occurrence again.

Daring Leap by a Rescuer.

By leaping from the Maynard street bridge into the river, a distance of 35 feet, Fred Sortman, of Duboistown, heroically rescued 7-year old Dellar Knight from drowning. The latter with several companions had been playing on some logs when he fell into the water. Sortman was crossing the bridge on his bicycle. Seeing the boy struggling in the water he jumped from his wheel and made the thrilling leap from the bridge. He caught the drowning boy as he was sinking for the last time.

TO BE INSTRUCTED!

Secretary of War Root Issues a Very Important Order to the Regular Army.

SCHOOLS TO BE ESTABLISHED

There Will Be Taught a System of Military Education Which It Is Hoped Will Do Great Good.

NEW APPOINTEES WILL PROFIT

"With the reduction of the Philippine force and the withdrawal from Cuba, the army is called upon to resume its most important work in time of peace—the work of perfecting itself in military science and skill and of promoting the preparation of the United States against future wars. I wish to call your attention to the conditions which now require especial effort and zeal on your part in the performance of this duty.

"Since the declaration of war with Spain in April, 1898, there have been appointed in the line of the army 1,542 lieutenants in addition to 276 appointed from the Military academy. Of these 616 were appointed from officers of volunteers under the act of February, 1901; 414 were appointed from the enlisted men of the regular and volunteer armies and 512 were appointed from civil life.

"The abandonment of the military schools for commissioned officers, which followed the employment of the entire army in active military operations, has left these 1,542 new lieutenants substantially without any means of acquiring a systematic military education. While many of the former officers of volunteers have acquired the most valuable experience by active service in the field, yet it is of great importance to them, as well as to the untrained appointees from civil life and from the ranks, that they shall have a broad and thorough training, both practical and theoretical, under the competent masters in the art of war whom our army is able to supply.

"Congress has now with wise liberality made provision for the re-opening of the army schools, has given its sanction to the general system of military education in the general order of November 27 last, including the enlargement and development of the Fort Leavenworth school into a general service and staff college, the establishment of the war college at Washington with suitable buildings and the rebuilding of the engineer school; and has made ample appropriations for these purposes.

"Every effort will be made by the war office board, which has general supervision and charge of the whole system, to bring its advantages to the new officers of the army as speedily as possible and to organize officers' schools at all the considerable posts without delay. I ask for hearty co-operation with them on the part of every officer of the army. There are 1,452 graduates of the Military academy now holding commissions. They, especially, have an opportunity to demonstrate their loyalty to the principles of that institution by helping to diffuse throughout the service the benefits which have come to them through their four years of hard study.

"The newly appointed officers should realize that there is much to be learned, and that the way to qualify themselves for the high and independent command for which they should all hope, is by constant intellectual exercise and by systematic study of the reasons of military action and the materials and conditions and difficulties with which military commanders have to deal."

REMODELING A CHURCH.

Salem Reformed Church Near Penn Hall to Undergo $2000.00 Worth of Repairs.

Salem Reformed church, east of Penn Hall, better known perhaps as the White church, is being rebuilt. Robert Smith, of Spring Mills, is the contractor who has charge of the repairs, which will cost about $2000.00.

The old church was built and dedicated during the pastorate of Rev. Lewis C. Edmonds, now of Ford City, Pa., in 1859. During the pastorate of Rev. Z. A. Yearick, the church was repainted inside and out.

The old church was a two story structure, 38x48 feet, the lower story being used for a Sunday school room, and the upper for congregational purposes. As rebuilt the church will be 38x60 feet, and will have but a single story. An addition of twelve feet to the rear of the old building, enables the congregation to have a Sunday school room 20x38 feet and an auditorium for church services of 38x48 feet. Sliding doors will allow both rooms to be used as one when occasion demands it.

A metal ceiling will be placed in the new building and stained glass memorial windows will be put in. Instead of a tower on the roof as in the old church, the new building will have a tower built from the ground at the south west corner, through which the main entrance is to be. A side door on the east side will be the entrance for the Sunday school.

It is the wish of the congregation to make the church modern in all its parts. When finished it will be one of the finest churches of the Aaronsburg charge, of which Rev. L. W. Brown is now pastor Dr. D. M. Wolf has for many years been the superintendent of the Sunday school. —Centre Reporter.

Death of Miss Anna Eliza Gregg.

Our entire community was appalled to hear of the sudden death on Saturday evening of Miss Anna Gregg, which occurred at her home near Milesburg, the immediate cause being heart failure. She had been in her usual health and was assisting at some domestic employment when friends who were in the room noticed a change coming over her as if she were ill. They immediately assisted her to a lounge, but before a doctor could be summoned her spirit had taken its flight.

Miss Anna Eliza Gregg was aged about 70 years and resided with her two sisters at the Gregg homestead near Milesburg. She was a most beautiful character, a woman of intelligence and refinement, and an earnest, consistent member of the Baptist church. Kind and loving in her disposition, considerate of the wants and feelings of her friends and neighbors, hospitable and generous in the highest degree, made her beloved by all who had the privilege of her acquaintance. Although her death was sudden and unexpected, and a great shock, especially to her immediate family, they have the comforting assurance that she has gone to her reward ; one more soul borne by Angel's wings to the realms of eternal bliss.

Miss Gregg belonged to one of the oldest and most prominent families of Centre county. Her father during his life was largely interested in developing the iron interests in this community. He also represented this district in the State Senate for several terms. Her mother was the daughter of John Irvin, one of the largest land owners in Penns Valley, and was a sister of Mrs. Sarah Potter of our town. She had three brothers, all of whom preceded her to the grave and were loyal soldiers of the Civil war and distinguished for their bravery. They were Gen. James Irvin Gregg, who died in Washington, D. C., several years ago; Andrew Gregg, who died at Centre Hall about six years ago; and Lieutenant James P. Gregg, killed at the battled of "Peach Orchard" in 1864, having gone into the engagement after his term of service had expired.

She is survived by two sisters, Misses Julia and Susan, with whom she made her home, and we assure these sisters that they have the heartfelt sympathy of the many friends of the deceased who mourn with them in their sorrow.

The funeral took place from her late residence on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment at Union cemetery, Bellefonte.

Lost Forty-Five Dollars.

While B. Holden Taylor, of Williamsport, was driving from Nittany station to State College last Saturday he lost an unsealed envelope containing $45. The envelope was in a coat pocket and it being quite warm Mr. Taylor had removed the garment. His loss was not discovered until he reached State College, where he entered the postoffice with the intention of procuring a money order and forwarding the same to Mr. Yinger. A search was immediately made but without finding any trace of the missing money.

THE CARNAHUBA PALM.

It Is Called the Most Marvelous Tree In the World.

Undoubtedly the most marvelous tree in the world grows in Brazil. It is the carnahuba palm and can be employed for many useful purposes. Its roots produce the same medicinal effect as sarsaparilla. Its stems afford strong, ligh fibers, which acquire a beautiful luster and serve also for joists, rafters and other building materials as well as for stakes for fences.

From parts of the tree wines and vinegar are made. It yields also a saccharine substance as well as a starch resembling sago. Its fruit is used for feeding cattle. The pulp has an agreeable taste, and the nut, which is oleaginous and emulsive, is sometimes used as a substitute for coffee. Of the wood of the stem musical instruments, water tubes and pumps are made. The pith is an excellent substitute for cork. From the stem a white liquid similar to the milk of the cocoanut and a flour resembling maizena may be extracted.

Of the straw, hats, baskets, brooms and mats are made. A considerable quantity of this straw is shipped to Europe, and a part of it returns to Brazil manufactured into hats. The straw is also used for thatching houses. Moreover, salt is extracted from it and likewise an alkali used in the manufacture of common soap.

Rings and Rheumatism.

Sufferers from rheumatism who believe that they will be cured of their aches through wearing a certain kind of metal ring would be surprised perhaps to hear that they are keeping alive an old superstition that owed its origin to one of the ceremonies performed on Good Friday. The ceremony was called the blessing of the cramp rings and was carried out by the king himself, who went into his private chapel, accompanied only by his great almoner, crawled on his knees to the crucifix and there blessed a silver bowl full of gold and silver rings. These rings were afterward distributed to people who were afflicted with rheumatism or epilepsy. The idea is supposed to have originated in a certain ring given by a pilgrim to Edward the Confessor, which was kept in Westminster abbey and used as a cure for such ills.—London Chronicle.

The Hairspring.

The hairspring of a watch is a strip of the finest steel about 9½ inches long and .01 inch wide and .0027 inch thick. It is coiled up in spiral form and finely tempered. The process of tempering these springs was long held as a secret by the few fortunate ones possessing it, and even now it is not generally known. Their manufacture requires great skill and care. The strip is gauged to the .020 of an inch, but no measuring instrument has yet been devised capable of fine enough gauging to determine beforehand by the size of the strip what the strength of the finished spring will be. A twenty-thousandth part of an inch difference in the thickness of the strip makes a difference in the running of a watch of about six minutes per hour.

Miniature Holland.

The striking thing about Holland is that everything except the old parish churches, the town halls, the dikes and the trees is in miniature. The cities are not wide, and one can go from the most northern point in the country to the most southern or from the extreme west to the extreme east in a single day and, if it be a summer day, in daylight, while from the top of the tower of the cathedral at Utrecht one can look over a large part of the country. The Hague and Rotterdam are only sixteen miles apart and The Hague and Amsterdam only forty miles. Arnhem and The Hague are the two most cosmopolitan cities in the kingdom, and one meets in the streets all sorts and conditions of Netherlanders.—Boston Transcript.

Brass and Bronze.

Brass and bronze are two alloys of copper. The first is composed of copper and zinc, the latter of copper and tin. Both historically and scientifically these two compound metals are of greater interest than almost any others. Copper was one of the first metals discovered, extracted and utilized in the earliest periods of our history, and antiquaries are accustomed to speak of a "bronze age" to express that interval of time during which this metal formed many of the implements used for industrial purposes and in warfare.

SHE GOT A SEAT.

But Not Through the Instrumentality She Had Invoked.

Humor does not abound in the vigorous atmosphere of the London twopenny tube between 7 and 8 p. m.; therefore the passengers jammed up near the fat, irate woman one evening last week greatly enjoyed the following:

"Thomas (this very loudly while jogging a mild little husband as they both swayed, clutching the leather loops overhead), get a seat for me, I tell yer."

Then: "Nonsense! Yer could find me a seat easy enough if yer wanted to."

More agonized whispers from the husband and more loud demands from the wife. There was great local relief when an irreproachably dressed young man politely gave up his seat. As the woman dropped heavily into it she beamed on him with "Any one can see you're not my 'usband, sir."—Manchester (England) Guardian.

The Boethick Indians.

The Boethick Indians of Newfoundland, at one time the aboriginal inhabitants of the island, can now only be counted by one or two skeletons and a few skulls, so completely have they been swept away. The French employed the Mic Mac Indians of Nova Scotia to fight against and exterminate them. The Boethicks were a peaceable and quiet race, given to hunting and fishing. They used canoes made of birch rind and of skins of deer, like the Eskimo cayak. They had no pottery and used utensils of birch rind sewed together, but they employed soapstone dishes as lamps, their form being similar to those among the Eskimos at the present day.

They carved deer and walrus horns and the bones of the seal into ornaments, which they wore on their dresses, and ornamented their heads with combs. The carvings are in triangular patterns, and out of the large collections in the museum at St. John there are no two ornaments having the same pattern. Their stone implements were more rudely constructed than those of the western Indians.

Pat and the Jockey.

Pat went to a race course the other day and fell in with a number of sporting friends who were betting on the races. He was urged to bet, but steadfastly refused until he saw two of his friends win a large sum on one of the races. Finally, after much urging, he put half a crown on a horse, from which moment he became deeply interested.

As the horses came past the judge's box Pat's fingers clutched the back of the seat and his eyes were wide with excitement. The horse on which he had bet finished sixth. Without a word, but with a look of deep disgust, he got up and hurried down to the paddock where the jockeys were. Calling the youngster who had ridden that particular horse aside, Pat inquired in deeply injured tones:

Snake Bite and Whisky.

There is not on record an authenticated case of snake bite cured by whisky. Plenty of individuals bitten while under the influence of liquor have died, and large amounts of alcohol have failed to save life in many cases. Only about one in six of those bitten by venomous snakes dies. The remaining five are cured by anything they happen to have taken. Stimulation is excellent, but the giving of whisky to drunkenness by lowering the resistive vitality has undoubtedly been a causative factor in many deaths supposedly from snake bite that would otherwise not have occurred.—American Medicine.

Fatherly Finesse.

Father—I forbid you to allow that sapheaded Squilldiggs to enter the house again!

Daughter—But I love him!

Father—I shall disinherit you! I shall shoot him! I shall—

Daughter—Boo-hoo-oo!

(Later.)

Father—Say, wife, be sure you double Gwendolin's allowance today and give it to her early. I think she is going to elope with young Squilldiggs tonight.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Hubby's Little Game.

Wife—What's the matter?

Husband—Some one has been robbing the firm, and I'm afraid I'll be suspected.

Wife—Impossible!

Husband—Well, it's best to be on the safe side. Better not buy that new dress you've been worrying me about.—New York Weekly.

She Knew Him.

"If you refuse me, it will kill me," he declared.

"How many lives have you?" she asked pitilessly, for she knew something of his previous "affairs" and naturally reasoned that this form of death was no novelty to him.—Chicago Post.

Expensive.

"I've quit joking my wife about women carrying their pocket handkerchiefs in their pocketbooks," said Tenspot. "It didn't pay."

"How was that?" asked Hunker.

"She said she'd carry money in hers if she had it. Handed her out $10 on the spot."—Detroit Free Press.

AN ILLUSTRATED VILLAGE.

Little Swiss Town One of the Quaintest In Europe.

When next you go to the Lake of Geneva, by all means pay a visit to the little known village of St. Legier, near by, on the road between Vevey and Blonay, one of the quaintest villages in Europe and one of the proudest on account of its extraordinary adornments. St. Legier and the adjoining village of La Chiesaz are nothing more or less than illustrated villages. They are as profusely illustrated as the modern magazine, for nearly all the houses bear on their outside walls some striking picture or comical caricature from the brush of a great man in the village, M. Alfred Beguin, a painter of local renown and not unknown in Paris, says Pearson's Magazine.

A house in St. Legier has no use for a signboard to tell the world that it is an inn, a cycle shop, a forge or a dairy. M. Beguin's picture does that. On a stable wall he draws a picture of a spirited runaway horse knocking down men as he leaps for freedom; on the white wall of the little village forge are pictures of men making horseshoes for dear life and shoeing a frisky steed; on the wall of the dairy a dairy maid balances a pail of milk on her head, while scenes of local life, as pictures of the annual summer exodus to the mountain pastures with the cows and goats, and caricatures of the local bigwigs make a bright picture gallery of the village. M. Beguin lives in one of the most imposing houses in St. Legier, whence he obtains a full view of the crooked little village street and of the Dent du Jaman towering up in the distance. For many years past he has amused himself by painting the houses, and in the first place he acquired most of his skill and boldness in painting in this way.—Detroit Free Press.

A Gigantic Goddess of War.

In the Japanese capital there is a gigantic image of a woman made of wood, iron and plaster. The time of its erection and the name of its designer are in dispute, but it is known to have been dedicated to Hachiman, the god of war. In height it measures fifty-four feet, the head alone, which is reached by a winding stairway in the interior of the figure, being capable of holding a company of twenty persons. The goddess holds a sword in her right hand and a huge painted wooden ball in the left. Internally the statue is the finest anatomical model in existence, every bone, joint and ligament being represented on a gigantic scale in proportion to the height and general size of the huge figure itself. The large eyes are magnifying glasses, through which a fine view of the surrounding country may be had.

Uninjured Lions Seldom Charge.

Like every other animal, the lion tries to avoid man until wounded, and it is only in exceptional cases of there being young ones to guard or from astonishment at seeing the hunters so close to them that they charge when being tracked.

They charge with the same coughing roar that a tiger does and come at great speed close to the ground, not bounding in the air, as they are represented in pictures. Their ears are pressed close to the head, giving them the comical appearance of being without ears.—London Times.

The Most Exalted.

"Let me now," said the chairman of the reception committee, "introduce to you the man who occupies the highest station in our community."

"Ah, pleased to meet you, sir," said the distinguished foreigner. "May I ask what your business is?"

"I am the weather observer."—Chicago Record-Herald.

HORSEHAIR SNAKES.

Peculiar Habits of These Threadlike Little Serpents.

The "horsehair snakes" are small, flesh colored mites which live principally in stagnant water. After going through various transformations they come to the surface of the water in the shape of very slender, purplish looking threads. When they reach this last stage, they leave the water and work their way up the stalks and leaves of aquatic plants. When opportunity affords, they attach themselves to the feet, legs, wings and other parts of larger insects, often, as one authority states, creeping under the wing case of beetles. In the case of the cricket, katydid, grasshopper and other insects of that ilk, whose legs are hollow, the tiny horsehair takes the advantage and creeps up the hollows into the very vitals.

This accounts for the fat and clumsy condition of some individuals of the above named species, single specimens of the cricket having been caught with over two dozen of these threadlike "snakes" attached to and inside of their bodies. After heavy rains, which frequently drown crickets and katydids which are weighted down by these parasites, the "horsehair snake" emerges from the carcass of the insect a full fledged miniature serpent. In this mature state he is the delight of the curiosity seeker and a mine of study to those who delight to delve in nature's bypaths. Those which have been fortunate enough not to have been carried very far from water by the insects which they encumbered during life make their way back to the ponds to lay their eggs. They then wrap themselves around the eggs, which soon hatch into the little flesh colored mites mentioned in the opening. About this time the parent "snake" dies to make room for his progeny.

DON'T READ IN BED.

It Is a Dangerous Practice While Lying Down, Says an Authority.

Reading in bed is seriously advised, so the newspapers say, by a physician as conducive to "repair and resting," "relieving congestion," "emptying the veins overfilled by prolonged eyework," etc.

It is plain that placing the head back in a horizontal position so absolutely meets the whole problem of a relief of congestion by gravity—and it is such a very important problem—that it seems strange that people with weak eyes do not habitually practice reading in a recumbent position perfectly comfortable. Such advice, carried out with absolute care as to light and the position of the book, would in the case of a thousand busy people add largely to the number of hours which reading could be indulged in without detriment to the eyes or general health.

Certainly the one who gives this strange and pernicious advice could never have tried the plan. Some years ago there was described a patented device for suspending the book over the horizontally placed head of a sick person whereby reading would be possible without holding the book in the hands. Even then one wonders how the light could be made to fall properly on the page. Without a method of the kind not even a well person could hold a book five minutes above the eyes. Reading in bed has ruined thousands of good eyes. Unless one sits up in bed as if in a chair it is impossible to hold the book in such a position that the arms are not quickly tired and so that the light falls on it properly. When reading lying down, there is a traction upon the inferior recti muscles which is highly injurious. Every patient should be warned never to read in bed except when sitting up as vertically as in a chair.—American Medicine.

STRONG PULSE BEATS.

Cases In Which They Are Perceptible to the Eye.

"It is not such an uncommon thing," said a physician, "to find a person whose pulse beats can be plainly seen, and yet I suppose there are but few outside of the profession who realize the fact. In most persons the beat of the pulse cannot be perceived, but the mere fact that the beating is perceptible does not mean that the pulse is other than normal. I have come across a number of cases where the throbbing of the wrist could be plainly seen, and yet the persons rarely gave evidence of abnormality in temperature. They were rarely feverish and were in good physical condition generally. Pulses of this kind, from this view, which is based upon actual observations of cases, do not indicate anything more than an abnormal physical condition in the formation of the wrist veins.

"I have met with one case which was possibly a little extraordinary in that it was plainer and much more distinct than any I had ever seen before. It could almost be heard. The artery would rise to a point almost as large as the ball of the little finger of a child and would change from the white of the skin to a blood purple with each beat of the pulse. I found it easy to count the pulse beats without touching the patient's wrist. I could see plainly enough to keep the record, and in order not to err in my calculation I tested it in several ways and found it was correct and that there was no mistake in my counting with the naked eye."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Origin of the Rattlesnake Flag.

One of the most common devices used on the American flags during the early part of the Revolutionary struggle was an embroidered rattlesnake above or below the legend "Don't tread on me!"

The origin of this design has been traced to a remark made by Ben Franklin. At the time the flag was adopted, or immediately before, England was shipping her criminals to America and turning them loose on the defenseless colonists. After several murders had been committed by these unwelcome immigrants Ben Franklin (some say in a joking spirit) suggested that the colonists retaliate by sending a cargo of rattlesnakes to the mother country and turning them out in the gardens of the nobles.

Speaking of Royalty.

Damocles had been invited to dine with the king of Syracuse. Upon taking his seat he instantly saw the sword hanging by a hair above his head.

"I suppose," he said to the king, "you call that the hair apparent." Dionysius, pretending to see no humor in the remark, replied, "I don't know about that, my boy, but if it falls upon your head it will make some crown prints."

This shows that the ancients were not averse to joking even under trying circumstances.—New York Times.

The Laugh.

Chumpley—That hypnotist is a fraud. He couldn't control my mind at all last night.

Pokely—Of course he had some excuse?

Chumpley—Yes. He said there was no material to work on. You ought to have heard the audience give him the laugh!—Tit-Bits.

A Great Bargain.

Mrs. Winks—A peddler was here today, and I got the greatest bargain—a whole pound of insect powder for only 10 cents. It looks just like dirt, but it's awfully effective. I tried it.

Mr. Winks—Worked, eh?

Mrs. Winks—Yes, indeed. The peddler said I should put a little in water and apply it boiling hot, and I did, and it killed every insect it touched.—New York Weekly.

A Pleasant Social Function.

There was a very pleasant social entertainment held at the residence of Mr. George Williams on Spring street Friday evening, given by his daughter, Miss Lucretia, in honor of her guest, Miss Charlotte Hubbard, of Beech Creek. It was intended principally for her juvenile friends, but quite a number of the older folks were present.

The occasion was enlivened by reciting recitations and instrumental music on the piano and violin, the little folks doing themselves great credit. The closing feature was a cake-walk, which was given by some of the young ladies. During the evening choice refreshments were served. The following guests were present: Misses Helen Smith, Margaret Gilmour and Mary Longwell, Masters Harold Gardner, Robert Walker, Paul Rumberger, Harris Olewine and Charles Miller.

The adults who graced the occasion by their presence were Mr. and Mrs. John S. Walker, Mrs. M. I. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Humes, Miss Morrison, Mrs. Rumberger and Mrs. Olewine. It was a most enjoyable affair to all present.

Mothers Always keep it Handy.

"My mother suffered a long time from distressing pains and general ill health due primarily to indigestion," says L. W. Spalding, Verona, Mo. "Two years ago I got her to try Kodol. She grew better at once and, now, at the age of seventy-six, eats anything she wants, remarking that she fears no bad effects as she has her bottle of Kodol handy." Poisoning the System.

It is through the bowels that the body is cleansed of impurities. Constipation keeps these poisons in the system, causing headache, dullness and melancholia at first, then unsightly eruptions and finally serious illness unless a remedy is applied. DeWitt's Little Early Risers prevent this trouble by stimulating the liver and promote easy, healthy action of the bowels. These little pills do not act violently but by strengthening the bowels enable them to perform their own work. Never gripe or distress. C. M. Parrish.

Vacation Days.

Vacation time is here and the children are fairly living out of doors. There could be no healthier place for them. You need only to guard against the accidents incidental to most open air sports. No remedy equals De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve for quickly stopping pain or removing danger of serious consequences. For cuts, scalds and wounds.

"I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve for sores cuts and bruises," says L. B. Johnson, Swift, Tex. "It is the best remedy on the market." Sure cure for piles and skin diseases. Beware of counterfeits. C. M. Parrish.

Treat Your Kidneys For Rheumatism

When you are suffering from rheumatism the kidneys must be attended to at once so that they will eliminate the uric acid from the blood. Foley's Kidney Cure is the most effective remedy for this purpose. R. T. I cannot speak too highly of this great medicine." C. M. Parrish.

No False Claims.

The proprietors of Foley's Honey and Tar do not advertise this as a sure cure for consumption." GOVERNOR'S DAY.

Such Was Thursday at Camp Meade and It Was the Most Successful Ever Held.

BY THE GUARD OF THE STATE

Troops Arranged in Two Long Lines and Regulars Participated in the Grand Review.

THE WEATHER WAS OF THE FINEST

CAMP MEADE, GETTYSBURG, July 18.—For a distance of a mile and a quarter more than 9,000 soldiers were drawn up in two lines yesterday afternoon and passed over historic ground in review of William A. Stone, Governor of this Commonwealth. The militia took one hour to pass.

At 5 o'clock the regiments began the formation. Brigadier General J. P. S. Gobin, being the senior brigade commander, held the right of the line with the regiments of the Third brigade. To his left was Brigadier General John A. Wiley and his command, the Secoud Brigade. Brigadier General John W. Schall and the First brigade were to the right of the second line of formation, and to his left were the artillery and cavalry commands.

A few minutes after 5 o'clock Major General Miller and staff passed down the line, the latter escorting the Governor accompanied by his staff. This took some time and it was 6 o'clock when Governor Stone swung his staff into position and faced Seminary Ridge, where once the army of Northern Virginia was drawn up in battle line.

Governor Stone, uniformed in the conventional frock coat and silk hat, was surrounded by his staff. On his right were Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart, who for the first time since his accident was in the saddle, and Major W. B. Duval, of the U. S. Artillery Corps, who is detailed by the War Department to inspect the guard. To the Governor's left were Major General Miller, division commander of the State militia. Captain F. P. Reynolds, Lieutenant Colonel of the U. S. Hospital Corps, and Lieutenant A. M. Williams, of the Twentieth U. S. Infantry rode as aides on General Miller's staff, and Lieutenant W. Drowning and Lieutenant C. A. Ross, who are detailed with Major Duval, rode with the Governor.

At 6 o'clock the Third brigade band struck up "Hail to the Chief" and the review began.

For an hour the men passed across the ground over which Pickett made his famous charge, from the clump of trees that partially screened Lee and his staff as he directed the fight down the broad fields, to the scene of the first day's fight at the edge of the town. A heavy wind, almost a gale, blew over the field and did much to prevent exhaustion on the part of the men, but added much to the discomfort of the onlookers in the shape of dust. All roads seemed to lead to the battlefield and over them passed every form of carriage and wagon known to civilized man. The review, which was one of the finest in the history of the Guard, and the beauty of it was greatly enhanced by the presence of the two troops, G and H, of the United States Cavalry, under command of Captain T. J. Lewis, and the Fourth United States Field Battery, under command of Capt. Stephen M. Foote, will be repeated today in honor of Secretary Root, who will be accompanied by Adjutant General and Mrs. Corbin, General Leonard Wood, General Bates, General Carter, Colonel Randolph, Major and Mrs. Drum and Lieutenant R. S. Clarke.

Governor Stone was asked if there was any truth in the stories published that some troops were to be sent to the coal regions. He said:

"I will say this: There is no truth in the story."

Turtle an Ancient Giant.

While walking over the old James Shirley farm, in Freedom township, Blair county, Howard M. Sell, a justice of the peace, found a land turtle that measured two feet across the back of its shell, it being the largest turtle ever seen in that vicinity. On the shell was the following inscription: "J. S., June 4, 1804." James Shirley, the first murderer hanged in Blair county, lived on the farm when a boy and it is supposed he carved the inscription on the turtle.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. DR. JOHN F. HARTER!

An Esteemed Citizen of Millheim Has Passed Away.

On Saturday morning Dr. J. F. Harter of Millheim, accompanied by Dr. Glenn, of State College, went to the Hahnneman hospital at Philadelphia for the purpose of having an operation performed on the former gentleman, who had been sick for a number of months. On Monday the startling news was received by Mrs. Harter that the doctor could not live two days; that an operation had been performed, and that it was found that the doctor had cancer of the bowels. She, in company with her brother-in-law, Robert H. R. Harter, of Chicago, who with his wife arrived in Millheim on Saturday, left for Philadelphia on the afternoon train. On Wednesday the news was received that Dr. Harter had died at 3:40 p. m., and that his body would be brought to his home at Millheim Thursday morning.

John Fletcher Harter was born in Millheim January 5, 1857. He was the son of Dr. W. S. Harter, who died April 30, 1877, and Mrs. Sarah Harter, who died December 22, 1893. Two sisters and two brothers also preceded him to the eternal world. One brother, Robert H. R. Harter, of Chicago, and one sister, Mrs. Emma C. Miller, of Millheim, are all that are left of the family to survive him. Dr. Harter was married September 17, 1878, to Miss Charlotte Meek, and she with the two children that blessed their union, viz.: Sadie B. and Jessie M., are left to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate husband and father.

Dr. Harter was educated in the public schools of his native town and when a boy began his professional career in his father's office, in the practice of dentistry, and later took up the profession as a life work. He had been, with the exception of six years at State College, a successful practitioner at Millheim.

In politics he was a staunch Republican, and in 1887 he was elected to the office of recorder of Centre county, which office he very creditably filled for three years, and at the time of his death he held the office of deputy collector of internal revence for this district. His popularity as a man was not limited by political ties, and he had many warm friends among those of opposite political faith. He held numerous local offices at Millheim, and in all his public work his ability and fidelity were fully proven. Always awake to the best interests of the town in which he lived, he was active in the various movements to improve the same. He was a leader and worker in the Methodist Episcopal church, always ready to contribute liberally and showed by the active work he took in the service of God that he had dedicated his life to Him. Such men like Dr. Harter the community can ill afford to lose.

The funeral took place Saturday morning at 9 o'clock from his late residence. Interment in the Millheim cemetery.

Several of our prominent capitalists have formed a co-partnership for the manufacture of an infallible remedy to prevent car and sea sickness,

The name and style of the Company is, The Kar-and-Sea-Sic Co., and the medicine will be placed on the market next week.

It will be principally offered for sale at sea-board cities and railroad centres. In addition to curing car and sea sickness, it is guaranteed a positive and sure cure for all ailments that human flesh is heir to. It preserves the hair and makes it curly, removes freckles and warts, and restores the lustre to patent leather shoes. The names of the promoters and officers of the corporation are: George R. Meek, president; Edmund Blanchard, manager; Fred Blanchard, assistant manager; E. L. Hoy, treasurer; Dr. M. J. Locke, chemist.

These names are an assurance that it is worthy of confidence, as they all are, with the exception of the chemist, well versed in Materia Medica having devoted many years to its study.

We hope they will make the millions out of it, that they anticipate, and will encourage our friends to buy it whether they need it or not.

In order to properly have it introduced, and testimonials secured, they will canvass the county, and give entertainments in the various towns, something after the order of the "Hit Medicine Company," which gave exhibitions on the Diamond a few weeks ago.

Ridgway Chief of Police Shot.

Chief of Police Robert M. McFarland, of Ridgway, was shot in the left shoulder Wednesday morning by one of several desperate characters, whom he was endeavoring to arrest. The men were wanted for robbing a boarding house at Laurel Hill, where they stole half a dozen watches and over fifty dollars in cash. The officers approached them while they were on a freight train. The men opened fire with revolvers. Several shots were fired, one of which took effect as described. The men escaped.

Sideache, Backache, Headache,

And many other aches to which women are peculiarly subject are generally the result of a diseased condition of the womanly organism. When this diseased condition is cured, sideache, backache, headache, etc., are cured also.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. When these diseases are cured the aches they cause are also cured.

"I will drop you a few lines to-day to let you know that I am feeling well now," writes Miss Annie Stephens, of Belleville, Wood Co., West Va, "I feel like a new woman. I took several bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have no headache now, no backache, and no pain in my side any more. No bearing-down pain any more. James Ray, a well known citizen of College township, died quite suddenly Thursday afternoon at his home at Houserville. He had just finished his dinner and was sitting on the front porch when he suddenly dropped to the porch floor and when his family reached him he was dead. Heart failure is given as the cause of death.

Deceased was a native of Centre county and was 77 years of age. He was a veteran of the civil war having served in Co. C, 148th Pennsylvania Volunteers. For many years he served as constable of College township. He was a member of the Methodist church and was a highly respected citizen. Surviving him are his wife and three children.

Miller—Robb.

John A. Miller and Miss Katherine Robb, both of Bellefonte, slipped away from their friends Wednesday evening and drove to Centre Hall where they were quietly married by Rev. Kershner at the Reformed parsonage in that place. Later they drove back to Bellefonte where a choice wedding supper awaited them at the residence of the bride's mother on East Bishop street.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alice Robb and is a very pretty and accomplished young lady and one who will make her husband an excellent helpmate through life.

The groom hails from Hublersburg but is now located here as manager of the Howard Creamery Company's plant at this place. He is an industrious and worthy young man and we wish him and his bride a happy and prosperous voyage through life.

Examine Your Mail.

The postal authorities at Washington recognizing the liability of postmasters to make mistakes in getting letters in wrong boxes have fixed a penalty of $200 on persons taking mail out of the office other than their own and not returning it. The law is to have people look at their mail before taking it out of the office and if they should have mail other than theirs they must return it at once. It also includes newspapers. The excuse that it is the postmaster's fault cuts no figure

Killed a Rattlesnake.

On Wednesday as A. M. DeHaas was standing at the water trough at his barn in Beech Creek township, he heard a gobbler making a peculiar noise. He looked in the direction of the fowl and saw a rattlesnake crawling away from the trough. The reptile was nearly four feet long. It was killed. This makes the second rattler Mr. DeHaas has killed near his barn this season.

COUNCIL IN A DILEMMA!

The Issue of $25,000 Worth of Bonds Is Illegal.

A PLAIN CASE OF BACKDOWN

Citizens Must Vote on Question of Increasing Borough Debt—No Sinking Fund Has Been Provided, as Required by Law.

THINGS ARE BADLY MIXED INDEED

We have been the subject of ridicule by some of our wiseacres concerning the article that appeared in our columns a few days ago, in which we stated that the issue of $25,000 additional Borough bonds would be an illegal transaction, and our only reason for paying the least attention to their idle talk is to inform the public concerning some facts of which they may not be cognizant.

We wish to state again, and this time with greater emphasis than before, that neither the Council nor Finance Committee have any legal right to issue this series of bonds, unless authorized to do so by a direct vote of the people, and even then it is a serious question whether or not this amount would be in excess of 7 per cent. of the assessed valuation of the property in our Borough. It will take some close calculation to determine this point.

Now, let us consider some facts. On March 31st, 1899, C. T. Gerberich, president, and H. B. Pontius, secretary of Council, filed a statement with the prothonotary setting forth under oath (mark you, under oath) that the total indebtedness of the Borough of Bellefonte was at that time $100,000. As there was $5,000 in the Sinking Fund Council was able to issue only $95,000 in bonds. This paper is filed and entered in No. 26 January sessions, 1899, and can be seen by any of our tax-payers who care to call at the prothonotary's office.

If these gentlemen were correct in their statement (and we know they intended to be honest in the matter) that the debt was $100,000 it is self-evident the $25,000 is a debt created since then, nor does it require a lawyer's opinion to enable the ordinary man to understand the situation, and our wonder is that such level-headed, intelligent men as compose our Council should have overlooked such an important matter. We say once more THIS ISSUE OF BONDS WILL BE ILLEGAL and again advise the Finance Committee not to go to the expense of having them printed.

The floating indebtedness must be paid, but will have to be provided for in some other manner. Now, since the bonded debt has been reduced to $95,000 let us, as citizens, see that it is not increased beyond that amount.

There is another point in the paper, which was filed in 1899, which is of vital importance to the individual members of Council and we venture to say that few, if any, of the members have given it the least consideration; it relates to the Sinking Fund. The Council is required BY LAW to levy and collect a tax of $7,000 each and every year, beginning March 31st, 1899, to be applied as follows, and not otherwise: To pay the interest on bonds as it accrues, and the balance to be set apart as a Sinking Fund for the redemption of bonds as they mature. This money is not to be invested in cats or dogs or Borough orders, but in something tangible, something that has value, and is a cash asset. Has the Council come up to the requirements of the law? Their last statement shows they have not, but instead, have collected this money and misappropriated it; they certainly know it is a clean-cut case of misdemeanor to divert money from the purpose which the law distinctly directs it to be applied.

We wish to be charitable in the matter and therefore attribute their mistakes to bad advice from those who are paid to keep them properly informed.

We will not enter more fully into this question at present as we expect to have more to say in a few days concerning our Council which may be of more interest to our readers.

Charity Ball or Dance of Nations.

Some of our ladies are arranging to hold a masquerade fancy ball in the armory on Thursday, evening, August 7th. The proceeds of the entertainment, after deducting expenses, will be applied to furnishing the new hospital. This is certainly a worthy cause, and all our citizens should take an interest in it. The ladies who have taken the initiative in the movement, but who will call to their help others, are Mrs. Burnett, Misses Mary Meek, Elizabeth and Mary Blanchard.

We bespeak for them, the hearty co-operation of every one, for the hospital under an arrangement just made is for the use of any one who needs medical or surgical attention.

A Pretty Wedding.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. H. S. DeLong, at Romola, on Wednesday, July 16th, at high noon, when his youngest daughter, Mamie L. was united in marriage to Mr. Marvin M. Marcy, of North Craftsbury, Vermont, in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends of the family. The bridal party entered the parlor to the strains of a wedding march rendered by Mrs. N. I. Wilson, sister of the bride, where they were soon pronounced one, by Rev. Frick, of Blanchard.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white nainsook, trimmed in lace, ribbon and chiffon, and the bride's maids, Miss Lizzie Holter, of Howard, and Miss Grace Vallimont, of Pine Glenn, were gowned in pale blue mousseline, with white trimmings. The groom was attired in conventional black. The bride is a most charming and accomplished young lady and has for a few years been one of Centre county's progressive young school teachers, and is in every way fitted as a most estimable wife for the husband of her choice. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Marcy of North Craftsbury, Vt., but at present is employed as book-keeper for the large lumber firm of J. B. Weed and Co., of Slate Run, Pa.

The young people left on the 7:47 train, over the N. Y. Central R. R. for Williamsport, and from there will go to house-keeping at Slate Run, Pa.

Missionary Reception.

About fifty ladies of the Presbyterian congregation assembled Thursday evening at the residence of Mrs. Archibald Allison to meet Mrs. Ogden who in May last returned from Gaboom, Western Africa. The reception was announced by Dr. Laurie at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting, and was of a social and devotional character. After singing and prayer, Mrs. Ogden delivered an address of intense interest, telling of her labors among the inhabitants of the dark continent, and how the work was progressing that many, who a few years ago, were living in idolatry and superstition, had now, through the work of the missionaries, embrace christianity, and were zealous workers themselves, in the dissemination of the religion of Christ. Her remarks being most encouraging to those interested in mission work.

Mrs. Ogden was at one time a resident of Bellefonte, having taught at the Academy at this place, and went to this distant mission field over twenty years ago, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

During the evening refreshments were served which were provided by Mrs. Charles Gilmore and Mrs. Allison.

A Woman Hypnotist.

The Williamsport News says: A woman from Lock Haven figured in a sort of a sensation in this city Wednesday evening. She was arrested by the police and detained at the city hall for several hours upon the request of a young man from the up-river town who asserted that the woman exerted somewhat of a hypnotic influence upon his father, a man aged 60 years.

The young man claimed that the woman had taken up a temporary residence in Williamsport and was writing tender epistles to his father urging him to leave his happy home at Lock Haven and take up his residence here in order to be near her. The woman effected her release from custody by promising to keep away in the future from her preference in the person of the aged gentleman.

MONDAY NIGHT'S MEETING OF COUNCIL.

The Town Council held its regular meeting Monday night, the members all being present except Messrs. Potter and Whittaker. After the minutes had been read and adopted (and just here before the minutes are adopted wouldn't it be well to have them entirely complete?) President Reynolds called for report of committees. The Fire and Police committees had no report, neither had the Nuisance committee. The Water committee offered a recommendation that the water tax be collected quarterly, the Superintendent of Water Works to be collector, without compensation, and to file a bond in the sum of $1,200.

The Street committee reported some repairs on the streets, among other things that they had faithfully carried out instructions of Council, and had the material on the ground for building the new crossing on Bishop street. At this point D. F. Fortney, Esq., Solicitor presented a draft prepared by the Borough Engineer, providing for laying out an extension to Willowbank street and locating Water street, with ordinances authorizing the same. This part of the proceedings was very amusing, each member presenting his own idea as to how the streets should be located, but President Reynolds called their attention to the fact that if they would adopt the engineer's plan the lower end of Spring creek would be narrower than above. He tried to beat this into their heads, and partially succeeded. Dr. Kirk, however, in order to get a finger in the pie, moved that the street be forty feet wide from High Street bridge to Lamb street. This will take about ten feet off of the entire length of Potter & Hoy's hardware store and all houses below, including the Electric Light plant. This motion went sailing through the Council, as does everything else. They were going to build a wall along Spring creek when Councilman Knisely reminded them that no authority had been given the Street committee to do so. It was suggested that the Street committee be authorized to go ahead and use their own judgment, but at this point the Solicitor informed them that property holders would have to have ten days' notice, and the ordinance would have to be published, so it was finally decided to let the matter rest until next meeting. In the meantime the citizens of the lower part of town can travel through the mud and dust as they have been doing since last February.

The committee on Revising Ordinances reported progress, which means that nothing has been done, and there is not an ordinance of the Borough which can be enforced. Fine Councilmen, these.

Councilman Cunningham came very near stirring up a rumpus. He inquired what report the Water committee had made in relation to enlarging the reservoir. This raised the Dutch blood of Messrs. Garrity and Kirk, who gave him to understand they were running that department to suit themselves. He inquired if they had an inspector at the reservoir Dr. Kirk replied that he went up every couple of days, but confessed he did not know anything about the work, whether it is being done properly or not, but said they had a guarantee. He did not tell what the guarantee was, or how long it extended. It may be like the guarantee on the water wheel, which is not worth the paper it is written on, and we will just observe at this point, that, THE BOROUGH WILL HAVE TO PAY FOR THE NEW PUMP AND WHEEL, WHETHER IT WORKS OR NOT. Councilman Cunningham, in trying to get this information, created quite a breeze, and gave to understand he knew what he was talking about, but he learned precious little from the committee.

The fact is the Water Committee had no right, whatever, to enlarge the reservoir without consent of Council, but as they are very heavy tax payers they do just as they please. What struck the writer as being remarkably strange was the fact that they did not report to Council that the pump and wheel would not work. One would have supposed that was the proper thing to do, and if it had not been for the DAILY NEWS our citizens would not have known of this gigantic fraud. They said nothing about the old pump being thrown on the junk pile and sold, for they did not consider this any business for the Council to know. They are a fine crowd to manage the affairs of the Water Department.

Nothing was said about water meters. This will come up later and end in court. The tax payers will be interested in knowing that within one month the Council have borrowed $2000 of which about $125 is still in the treasury. At the same time they are going ahead borrowing. Where, and when, will it end?

As we will have much more to say on municipal affairs in a few days we will allow our citizens to digest what we have written.

We failed to mention that no action was taken in regard to the $25000 illegal issue bonds. The Solicitor has prepared an elaborate opinion on the case, which will not convince any one of their legality. It is simply bosh.

How David Miller Was Arrested.

The detectives, policemen and constables did not figure very extensively in apprehending and arresting David Miller who is in jail charged with causing the death of his son-in-law. The arrest was made in a simple and unostentatious manner. Just at the time the tragedy occurred Mr. J. J. Coffey who is manager of the Isaac Reese Sons store at Retort was passing with his brother, both of whom were in a buggy. Mr. Coffey sent his brother for a physician, in the mean time doing all he could to minister to the wants of the injured man. When the doctor arrived and pronounced the victim in a dangerous condition, he immediately took charge of Miller driving him to Sandy Ridge, and presented him before a Justice of the Peace, who deputized Mr. Coffey to deliver him at the county jail, which was done without display, the prisoner offered no resistance and accompanied the deputy willingly. When they arrived at Bellefonte a large crowd was at the station, who failed to recognize officer and prisoner and they reached the jail without any annoyance or difficulty.

—August number of "10 Story Book" is out and contains the usual complement of ten clever stories which the readers of this popular magazine have been led to expect. Opie Read heads the list with a characteristic story entitled "A Successful Liar." H. S. Canfield contributes a timely and exceedingly clever story entitled "A Ping Pong Proposal." Chas. Eugene Banks, whose Indian story "A Child of the Sun" created so much comment last fall, contributes an Indian tale entitled "A Princess of the Wildwood." Edward W. Townsend, widely known for his "Chimmie Fadden" stories, contributes a bright sketch entitled "Where the Millions Come From." Julia Truitt Bishop has a pretty love story entitled "His Old Sweetheart" and Will T. Hale has a Central American love story entitled "Isabella." Other stories are by Ethelyn Leslie Huston, Willard French and Ethel M. Colson. The tale selected in the series of short story masterpieces is "How Gavin Put it to Mag Lownie," by J. M. Barrie.

—Perhaps English conservatism never took a more amusing form than recently, when a British coroner held an inquest over a mummy because the owner could produce no death certificate. After the inquest the corpse was pronounced dead "because the coroner sat on it" and as he ruined the mummy the owner has brought suit for heavy damages.

Williams Reunion.

The executive committee for the Williams Reunion met July 19 to make arrangements for their third anniversary, which they decided to hold in Miles grove near Martha, Centre Co. Pa., August 16th. Last year over three hundred of the "clan" were present but the interest already manifested for this occasion augers well for a greater gathering of this grand old family and their friends.

No formal invitation will be issued to those residing in the county and this announcement is to be understood and accepted as a general invitation to all members of the Williams clan and their friends to join in this friendly association.

The Reunion will be of the basket picnic plan but those of the tribe who come from distant places will be entertained. Such persons may communicate with the corresponding secretary Ida R. Williams, Martha Pa., and arrangements will be made for their entertainment. The following persons constitute the executive and sub-committees.

New Bridge for Millerstown.

Millerstown is to have a new bridge in place of the old one recently destroyed by fire. It will be built by the State and cost about $92,000.

The bridge as determined by the viewers is to be a Pratt pattern steel bridge with driveway 22 feet wide and footway on the upper side 8 feet wide. It will be of three spans with a total length of 706 feet between abutments.

The material is to be of open hearth steel with an ultimate resistance of 60,000 pounds to the square inch, and is to carry a rolling load of 30 tons on a 7 foot centre to centre wheel base.

The abutments and piers will of course have to be new, as the bridge will cross the river diagonally and the abutment next to Millerstown will be 10 feet nearer the shore. By crossing the river in this way the new bridge and the one over the railroad will be nearly in line and the turn on the road between the railroad and river bridge will be avoided.

Dog Days are Here

The dog days are here and will last six weeks. This season is regarded by many persons as more unhealthy than that which immediately precedes or succeeds it, and as being a time when mankind are more liable to attacks from diseases through exposure or imprudence in their general habits than in any other. If there is no foundation in fact for the belief it is a superstition of long standing. There are even those now who would not for a single moment be regarded as an all superstitions who look upon the dog days as exercising bad influences upon everything. The heat while the dog days last is usually more sultry and oppressive than any other in the summer. Then, too, meats and vegetables are supposed to be in more danger of spoiling from the effects of the weather than at any other. Be this as it may, we will now enter upon the dog days, and it would be well for us to be careful in our diet and manner of living.

New Pension Law.

Under the new pension law just passed by Congress all pensioners under the general law are entitled to an increase of $10 per month. All pensioners under the act of June 27, 1890, who are blind and who are disabled so that they require the frequent though not constant attendance of another person, are entitled to $30 per month as soon as the law is signed by the president. There are no other changes in the pension law.

—A heavy storm passed over Oak Grove Friday morning. When the storm came up, the bricklayers on machine shop walls went into another building and while there a bolt of lightning entered the building and struck seven men, rendering them all unconscious. Three soon recovered, but four of the men were carried to their boarding house. All those stricken were more or less burned and blistered. Charles Lenhart's shoe was cut as though a knife blade had run through. Both his shoe and foot were burned.

—Fly paper is again being used this summer to head off the caterpillars. Persons who have trees in front of their homes are tying the sticky stuff around the trunks to catch the destructive caterpillar as he crawls up to the leaves. The paper does the work splendidly. As a rule the worm will go up to the paper and sniff at the scented death, then turn and crawl back to the ground glad to get off with life.

SMALLPOX AT LOCK HAVEN.

Lizzie Reed of Bellefonte is the Victim—Said to be a Mild Case.

Lizzie Reed, of this place, is ill with the smallpox at the Lock Haven hospital. She is a daughter of Wm. Reed of Half Moon Hill and is about 23 years of age. She has been in Lock Haven for some time employed as a domestic. The young lady recently visited it is said Tyrone and Altoona.

Tuesday's Lock Haven Democrat in speaking of the case says:

Lizzie Reed, who was taken to the hospital Saturday evening, has the smallpox. The suspicious symptoms of yesterday were confirmed this morning by the appearance of the rash that is the sure indication of the disease. In order that there could not be a mistake before pronouncing it such, the attending physician today called the other physicians to the hospital and after an examination, all arrived at the same conclusion.

The board of health was notified and this afternoon arrangements are being made to take the patient away from the hospital to an isolated building.

The patient before being taken to the hospital had been in Tyrone. She does not known where she caught the contagion, but it is supposed that she came in contact with some who had the disease. The dwelling where she had been before going to the hospital, has been thoroughly fumigated.

Fortunately for the inmates of the hospital, when the patient was taken to that institution she was put in a room apart from the others. All the articles in the room will be destroyed, and the hospital will be placed under quarantine ten days. A nurse from Westport will probably be secured for her.

The physicians state that up to the stage which the disease in the patient has developed, the possibility of the contagion spreading is reduced to a minimum.

Additional Notes on Council Meeting.

An item which is of interest and should have appeared in report of Council proceedings Tuesday, is this:—The Water Committee recommended a special collector for the water tax, and that it be collected quarterly. We wish to kindly remind these gentlemen that their action infringes on the rights and privileges of our regularly elected tax collector. They might as well elect a special collector for street tax, and for interest tax, which of course they could not do legally, and we think the best plan to pursue, is to allow the matter to stand as it is, for there are other things of more serious importance to our tax payers then getting into litigation with Capt. Taylor, for he most certainly would make it interesting, should any one attempt to interfer with his rights. They had just as well do something with the new pump and wheel, and ascertain why the manufacturers do not come to either make it work or remove it, or a little attention given to the enlarging of the reservoir would not be a miss.

We were not aware until Tuesday night that the borough treasurer has been compelled to borrow $4000, instead of $2000 as stated Tuesday, in order to pay orders drawn by Council.

When a horse picks up a nail in his foot what does the driver do? Does he whip the limping, lagging animal and forces him along? Not unless he wants to ruin the horse. At the first sign of lameness he jumps down, examines the foot and carefully removes the cause of the lameness. What is called "weak stomach is like the lameness of the horse, only to be cured by removing the cause of the trouble. If you stimulate the stomach with "whiskey medicines" you keep it going, but every day the condition is growing worse. The Swindler.

The country papers are full of accounts of swindlers practicing their wiles on country folks, who persist in dealing with strangers in a manner that would cause immediate suspicion if his nearest neighbor or dealer, whom he knows all about, would suggest it. To avoid being swindled, deal with men you know; deal with firms who advertise their business and methods in newspapers, because they are not ashamed of them. The swindler who travels through the country aims to keep his business out of the public press; avoids the country newspaper the same as he does a police. Beware of strangers; patronize the man you know.

TOWER 1,200 FEET HIGH.

Penns Valley Brains Will Be Represented at the St. Louis Show.

Rev. S. L. Stiver, Ph. D., Superintendent of the Bunker Hill Military Academy, Bunker Hill, Illinois, who claims Potters Mills as his birthplace, has been granted privilege by the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, to erect a tower 1,200 feet in height. The only hinderance to building this tower is the fact that the steel mills are almost a year in arrears in their work.

Great elevations at Expositions have had a peculiar fascination for visitors. That people will patronize an evidently safe means of securing an elevated view is proven by the success of the Ferris Wheel and the Eiffel Tower.

Americans naturally would not be satisfied, in St. Louis, with something less sublime and novel than has been produced before or has been presented in some foreign country.

With an elevation of 1,200 feet this pyramid would be the tallest structure ever erected—410 feet above the highest point of the projected Frieda Aerial Globe and 200 feet higher than the highest point of the Eiffel Tower.

The perimeter of the base would be 1,800 feet; the side and radius each 30,000 feet, and the area of the first floor 234,000 square feet, or about 5¼ acres. If the floors were placed 100 feet apart there would be a total floorage in the twelve floors of 1,030,075 square feet or between 23 and 24 acres. the twelfth floor would have an area of 1,650 square feet. All this floorage would be available for useful purposes.

The cost of the structure is estimated anywhere from a million to two million dollars.

Smallpox Scare at Jersey Shore.

Smallpox has broken out in Jersey Shore and the residents are very much excited over it. Three cases are reported in a family named Miller on Allegheny street, and two cases are reported in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Douglass, near the junction. A girl and a younger sister in the Miller family had been treated for chickenpox, and had been allowed to go wherever they pleased. A member of the board of health of Williamsport was sent for, who Monday pronounced the disease smallpox. He quarantined the house. The Miller girl had been in the postoffice and several other places in the town Monday morning. The postoffice was fumigated.

The inmates in Mrs. Douglass' boarding house were also visited and were told they had smallpox. The house was also quarantined.

The disease was brought to Jersey Shore by a girl from either Elmira or Corning. She secured employment as a domestic in the Miller home. After being there a short time eruptions were noticed breaking out on her body and she was discharged. She then went to live with Mrs. Douglass and carried the disease to that place.

The physicians are busy vaccinating people and are taking all precautions necessary.

It was also reported that there were smallpox cases in the boarding house at Oak Grove, but this report is untrue, as the patients are in the boarding house at Jersey Shore Junction.

There are eight new cases at Mount Carmel.

FOR NERVOUS FOLKS.

Systematic Rest, Massage and Proper Diet Will Work Wonders.

Schule, writing on mental diseases, asks, "Is our civilization to blame for this neurotic condition?" and the answer is in the affirmative. How can nutrition prosper in the body where malnutrition holds full sway? And how can people be happy and healthy when worry dominates their lives? For in this human being the lower officers of the nervous hierarchy draw their very breath at the bidding of the higher powers, and the relation is verily reciprocal, for to keep the brain healthy the unconscious nervous functions must be kept in good shape, proper activities alternating with wisely arranged periods of repose.

Just as soon as one notices the approach of nervous irritability systematic nerve rest will shorten an attack, and by rest I mean to have the patient go to bed and have massage. The amount of exercise undergone in a good scientific massage is equal to a walk of two or three miles a day, and it goes without saying that such passive exercise should increase the appetite, and the food ingested and enjoyed will be digested and assimilated. I use the word "enjoy" deliberately, because there are some nervous invalids who cannot enjoy their food unless in solitude. In addition to the massage I would recommend salt rubs, which are very easy to give. Have a saturated solution of common table salt. Rub the body briskly, especially from the spine outward toward the sides of the body and as soon as the skin is well reddened wash off with moderately cool water, and the chances are all in favor of restful condition. In case persons suffer from cold feet at night I would advise the bathing of the feet in cold water before going to bed and having a hot water bag always at hand.

Lettuce, celery, spinach, onions, are all vegetables especially valuable to a person of nervous temperament, and milk hot or cold is invaluable.—Pilgrim.

SCIENCE SIFTINGS.

The amount of blood in the human body is one-thirteenth of the body weight.

Sound moves 1,142 feet per second, light 192,000 miles a second and electricity 288,000 miles a second.

The rotation of a waterspout at the surface of the sea has been estimated as 354 miles an hour, or nearly six miles a minute.

The sun's light is equal to 5,563 wax candles at one foot from the eye. It would take 800,000 full moons to equal cloudless sunshine.

It is probable that the temperature of the moon's surface at its midday is 750 degrees F. The drop at night is probably 1,000 degrees, to 250 degrees below.

Vesta is the only one of the smaller planets which can be seen with the naked eye. Its diameter is only 300 miles and its whole surface but one-ninth that of Europe.

Crystallized nitrogen is one of the greatest chemical curiosities. By cooling nitrogen gas down to 367 degrees below the freezing point and then allowing it to expand solid, snowlike crystals are formed.

MONEY IN LETTER BOXES.

People Who Try to Pay Postage In That Way.

"Here are two pennies just turned in to the superintendent of delivery by one of the carriers," remarked an official of the Washington city postoffice a few days ago. "The amount of cash gathered up by the collectors of mail is really surprising. Hardly a day passes without a certain percentage of the coin of the realm finding its way to my desk through the medium of the street letter boxes.

"It is hard to believe, but hundreds of persons every day in the year drop unstamped letters in the box with pennies to accompany them to cover the postage. They think the money will do just as well as stamps. But they are mistaken. All such unstamped letters, if there is no identifying mark on the envelope, ultimately land in the dead letter office.

"It often happens," added the postal official, "that coins placed in envelopes for transmission work their way through the paper. In nine cases out of ten, even when the money so lost is no more than a dime, this office is notified of the occurrence by the loser, who requests that he be reimbursed."—Washington Star.

A Picturesque Mountain.

In Surrey county, N. C., there is a mountain whose outline displays a striking likeness to the sphinx of Egypt. It is in the northwestern part of the state, just east of the Blue Ridge range, and lies prone upon the Piedmont plains. At a distance of ten miles the figure is the exact counterpart of that of a gigantic lion, its body at right angles to the precipitous ridge and with head reared aloft as if in the act of rising.

Mind Action Revealed by a Watch.

"If I suspend my watch directly in front of me by holding the end of the chain with both hands, I find that the watch will swing in the direction of which I am thinking," says a psychological writer. "If I think of it swinging in a circle, it swings in a circle. If I think of it swinging from right to left and from left to right, it swings in that manner. I try to make no movements with my hands, but find it impossible to keep them from it for any length of time, if I concentrate my attention on the movement."—Jewelers' Circular-Weekly.

"JUST MAKING BELIEVE."

There is many a failure on the part of "grown ups" to comprehend the mental processes of their imaginative superiors—the children. Some clumsy person calls the most charming device of fancy "another of those naughty fibs." By that condemnation he sets up a well nigh impassable barrier between himself and the childish dreamer.

Not long ago a grown up was accosted on the street by a dainty maiden of four, who nodded a bright good morning and then said, "Isn't there going to be a wedding down there?" pointing across the square.

"I think not," said the obtuse adult. "I haven't heard of any wedding."

"Are you sure? I think there's going to be one," persisted the little maiden.

"I don't see any flowers or carriages, and I guess you are mistaken," replied the champion of dull fact.

Then the tiny pleader drew nearer, and with an entreating touch of her hand and a voice lowered out of hearing of the fairies she breathed:

"Please say there's going to be a wedding. I'm just making believe."

Could the power of imagination go further? Could there be a simpler device for turning this dull world into a garden of flowers and sweet music than this same gentle "making believe?"

Imagination often proves to be the door that opens into a high philosophy of life. We all remember Dickens' brave little marchioness. "Did you ever taste orange peel and water?" she demanded of the gay Dick Swiveller. He replied that he never had tasted that ardent beverage.

"If you make believe very much, it's very nice," said the small servant, "but if you don't, you know, it seems as if it would bear a little more seasoning certainly."

As long as life has its ups and downs it is by no means impossible that to us all, old as well as young, there may come a time when we shall be glad to have acquired the accomplishment of making believe very much.—Youth's Companion.

LAZY AND COLD BLOODED.

An Incident That Nearly Cost Sir Hugh Rose His Peerage.

Lord Strathnairn was the most indolent, lackadaisical, languid person who ever dawdled along Piccadilly. When he was devastating central India and winning the splendid victories that immortalized his name, he was so lazy that he could not be got to dictate the dispatches recording his own triumphs. Months elapsed before these documents could be extracted from him, and then they were brief and meager to the last degree. One day when Sir Hugh Rose he was entertaining a gallant company at dinner during the crisis of the mutiny.

With the utmost sang froid he was delighting those near him with one of his best anecdotes. In the middle of it his orderly entered and after saluting exclaimed, "We have captured 200 rebels, sir." To him the general turned and, with that elegant courtesy of manner on which he prided himself, serenely replied, "Thank you, sergeant." But the man still remained Again interrupting his chief, he said, "But what are we to do with them, sir?"

"Oh," replied Sir Hugh, with a soft smile, "hang them, of course." And he resumed his anecdote.

In a little while Sir Hugh was again interrupted in the middle of another story by the sergeant, who came in and said, "Please, sir, we've hung the lot, sir." The general turned, bowed slightly and in the sweetest manner lisped, "Thanks, sergeant—very many thanks," and then went on with his anecdote as if nothing had happened.

This story came to the ears of Queen Victoria, and she was so angry that it nearly cost Sir Hugh his peerage.

Got His Answer.

"While on a trip through the south soon after the civil war," said a Chicago man, "I stopped overnight at the little town of Warrenton, N. C. The next morning, strolling around looking the place over, I met a countryman who greeted me with a 'Howdy?' and 'passed the time of day' most cordially. I was considerably taken aback when I noticed that he was barefooted, and I ventured to ask him if it was the custom of the country for the men to go without shoes. He answered, with a drawl, 'Waal, some on us does, but most on us 'tends to our own business.'"

A Curious Relic.

A curious relic of Louis XVII. is the "game of dominos" made of pieces of the Bastille which were given to the dauphin before he and his parents left Versailles forever. It is said that when the box containing it was brought in the queen exclaimed to her bedchamber woman, Mme. Campan, "What a sinister plaything to give a child!" The sinister plaything is now added to the other revolutionary objects preserved in the Hotel Carnavalet.—London Chronicle.

ONE MAN'S FINE CONCEIT.

Massing of Men, He Says, Means Strength; of Women, Bonnets.

"It's an odd thing about women," remarked Jones to his wife as he settled himself for a special effort. "We admire you intensely in the individual. We adore you when taken singly, but it's a strange, sad fact that when a few hundred of you get together you lose distinction. A multitude of rare women brought together in one building for a common cause are far from venerable. Look at Sorosis. The club is undoubtedly made up of ideal mothers and wives, but one resolutely refuses to find it anything else than a convocation of bonnets. Earnest, intense women recruit the ranks of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, but its mass meetings only amuse the rest of the world. An exclusively feminine tea was never an object of envy to those who pass it by."

"And what of you men?" suggested Mrs. Jones. "Are you all so much finer in a crowd?"

"Undoubtedly," replied Jones. "It isn't open to dispute that a 'gang' of men is at all times convincing. If it is only a mob with a rope looking up a criminal, the sight does not lack impressiveness. The imagination plays about a 'smoker' and speculates as to the quality of the cigars and the stories. And a good share of the world's work has been done by men in mass for a purpose. Union to us is strength, and the novelist has always remained below when the door of the banquet hall was opened for the filing out of the ladies."—New York Tribune.

Small Things That Count.

It is said that Cæsar chose his generals according to the length of their forefingers in comparison with that of their second fingers. No man whose forefinger was over one-eighth of an inch shorter than his middle finger had a ghost of a show. Men with very short forefingers are supposed to be effeminate. I believe it is so. Napoleon's generals were selected by their noses. Cromwell believed that bowlegged men made the best soldiers. Washington preferred men with high cheek bones. Receding foreheads were the rule among his generals. Alexander the Great judged men by their teeth, those having very large canines being preferred as commanders.—New York Press.

Life In New York.

Nobody living outside New York knows how difficult it has become in that city for people of moderate means to bring up their children in the love of genuine things. It is still done by many, but with increasing effort and only by dint of a strong will and an inheritance of the truest graces of life — simplicity, the domestic affections and the love of nature and one's kind. It is to the cultivation of these graces that we must look for a rescue from the artificiality and the vulgarity of the pitiable circle in every American city known as "the smart set."—Century.

Tannoform.

Tannoform is an insoluble powder of pinkish color. It is without odor and flavor and is practically nonpoisonous. When applied to the skin, it stops sweating and destroys the odor of sweat already secreted. Hence its utility in case of offensive secretion (bromidrosis). For allied reasons it is useful when the feet become tender by overheating. Pedestrians and others will find it useful.

Lonely In the Gallery.

Years ago our theaters did not have the large audiences they now have, and it was a common sight to see a house of "empty benches."

"I was employed at the gallery box office of one of the theaters," says a reminiscent Philadelphian, "and one stormy evening sold but one ticket, that to a boy about thirteen years of age, who rushed up to the window and asked if I thought he could get a good seat. I replied that I thought he could. I felt sorry for the little fellow and wondered how he would feel sitting in the gallery all by himself. After the first act was over I was aroused by a tap on the window and, upon opening it, saw my solitary ticket purchaser standing there with a very sad expression on his face.

"'Mister,' he said, 'I'm the only one up there, and it's so lonesome that I am afraid to stay. Won't you give me another ticket, and I'll bring our gang around tomorrow night to help you out?'

"I took the lad to the manager and explained the situation. That boy witnessed the balance of the performance from a plush covered seat in the front row."—Philadelphia Times.

The Moslem Creed.

A German Christian missionary who has worked for many years among the Mohammedans says: "Honesty compels every candid student to acknowledge that the old view formerly entertained in Christian circles concerning Mohammedanism, according to which the teachings of the great Arabian prophet are nothing but devil's doctrines and dogmas, is altogether incorrect. In reality, Mohammedanism is nothing but a rationalistic type of Christianity in the form of a most unfortunate state religion. The times are past when scolding about the Moslem creed as the production of the devil will satisfy, and the struggle against Islam on these premises is a failure. Practically all of the mission literature that in the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries was written against Mohammedanism is useless."

A STORY OF HENRY BERGH.

One of His New York Experiences In Protecting Dumb Animals.

Like a well dressed, somber ghost he went striding down the snowy street, and at University place he found the thing he had expected—a car packed inside almost to suffocation, both platforms packed outside, with men clinging like big burs to bottom steps and dashboard rails, and before it, within a cloud of steam, two ill fed, bony horses with bloodshot eyes and wide, red nostrils flaring in their effort to fill laboring lungs with air, with heaving sides and straining backs and flanks, while their madly scrambling feet struck fire from the slippery stones as they strove in vain to start again the awful weight behind them. Curses, oft jerked bell and assisting yells of passengers failed of effect. The driver's whip was raised ready for the stinging blow, when suddenly the straining effort ceased, the horses' heads drooped low, and through the thick air there loomed up before them a tall, dark form, with hand upraised commandingly. And calm and distinct two laconic words reached all ears: "Stop! Unload!"

"Who the blank are you?" furiously demanded the driver. "And where's your authority for interfering with this trip?"

He knew well enough whom he was talking to, so silently Mr. Bergh turned back the lapel of his coat to show his badge, for in those days he had to do constabulary work as well as official, then repeated, "Unload!"

But, being tired, hungry and mad, the floodgates gave way, and the passengers' wrath burst forth. Abuse, satirical comment, threats, filled the air. To a few who remonstrated decently with him he expressed regret, but with grave politeness insisted on lightening the load, telling them they could see for themselves the utter inability of the horses to get them to the end of the line and gently urged them hereafter to note the condition of crowding before taking a place on a car.

The conductor was especially ugly and became unpleasantly demonstrative. His example worked like a leaven on the rest, and a spirit of riot began to show distinctly in the crowd closing about the tall, calm, self possessed man. All faces scowled, and evil names were tossed upon the air. He had just said, "You are yourselves increasing this delay; you might have moved two minutes and a half ago," when a scurrilous great brute came close up to him and, with an unspeakable epithet, shook a dirty fist directly in his face. Without the flash of an eye or the quiver of a muscle in his quiet face Mr. Bergh caught the ruffian by the shoulder, whirled him around, grabbed the seat of his breeches and the nape of his neck, and, with a splendid "now all together" sort of a swing, he fired him straight across the street, head on into the snow bank.

A silence of utter amazement was suddenly broken by one great, swelling laugh, and then followed the always thrilling sound of three gloriously hearty American cheers. Many men shook hands with Mr. Bergh before beginning their long tramp homeward. Some admitted their error in aiding the overloading.—Clara Morris in McClure's Magazine.

DOUBTFUL RUMORS.

And Still Scores of Bellefonte People Accept Them as Facts.

The published statement of some stranger residing in a far-away place may be true enough, but it is generally accepted as a doubtful rumor. How can it be verified? The testimony which follows is convincing proof because it comes from a resident of Bellefonte.

Mrs. F. Davis, of Logan street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills did more towards freeing me from terrible pains in my back than any other medicine ever did. I had taken so many kinds and so many prescriptions without one perceptible gain that I was unprepared for the immediate improvement I received from taking Doan's Kidney Pills I read statements about Bellefonte people who had been cured by their use and I got them at F. Potts Green's drug store. After taking them I felt so well that I walked down town with my husband, something I had not done for two years. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others suffering from their back and kidneys. I have more confidence in them than in any physician's prescription."

PROF. J. ANGEL

AN EXPERT

Eye Specialist!

of Williamsport, will make his monthly visit here

ONE DAY ONLY,

Wed. July 30,

from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., with headquarters at

THE GARMAN HOUSE

Bellefonte, Pa.

I can examine your eyes at your home, by appointment, without extra charge.

If you need me at your home drop me a line in care of Garman House.

Hundreds are going blind daily, from the need of the proper prescribed glasses and from delaying attention to the eyes from time to time. Nothing will destroy your eyesight quicker than cheap glasses or glasses not properly fitted to your eyes.

Prof. Angel, in the short time he has been visiting this section, has met with marked success. Scores of leading citizens of this community have found relief from his treatment. It is not necessary to travel to Eastern cities for treatment when you can consult an eminent oculist at home.

Disfigured Skin

Wasted muscles and decaying bones.

What havoc!

Scrofula, let alone, is capable of all that, and more.

It is commonly marked by bunches in the neck, inflammations in the eyes, dyspepsia, catarrh, and general debility.

It is always radically and permanently cured by —The Stock Holders of the "Blue Jacket Milling & Mining Co." are feeling very jubilant over news received from the zinc mine. —Wild cats and catamounts are very plentiful in Mifflin county. Burt Shimp and County Detective Edward A. Hoot, of Lewistown, with their families who are camping in Lewistown Narrows, are greatly annoyed at nights by these wild beasts. On Monday a catamount ventured within plain sight of the camp in daylight.

—Charlie Gates, Ben Tate and John Wilson, a trio of Izaak Walton's disciples, tried their luck with the speckled beauties Friday. We saw them start from the Arcade and they were loaded with lanterns, umbrellas and fishing-tackle, but did not observe any bait; of course they had plenty of that. If we are not very much mistaken they caught more wet than anything else.

—It is said that a man who won't take a paper because he can borrow one has invented a machine with which he can cook his dinner by the smoke from his neighbor's chimney. This same fellow sits in the back pew in church to save interest on his contributions. Yes, we all know him. He is a first cousin to the man who never winds up his clock for fear of breaking the spring.

—Some members of the Council are doing a mighty sight of talking about the articles in the DAILY NEWS. As there are but two of that intelligent body who subscribe for the paper we wonder how they know so much about what it contains. The only solution is that they must either beg or borrow it from those who are public spirited enough to sustain a daily paper. They must and will read it and we promise more interesting reading in the future than has appeared in the past. A man who is too close-fisted to encourage the newspapers of his town is not fit to occupy the responsible position of Councilman.

—A drunken man staggered into church one Sunday and sat down in the pew of one of the deacons. The preacher was discussing about prevalent popular voices. Soon he exclaimed: "Where is the drunkard?" The drunken man was just far enough gone to think the call personal, so rising heavily, replied, "Here I am," and remained standing while the drunkard's character and fate were eloquently portrayed. A few minutes later the preacher reached another head of the discourse, and asked, "Where is the hypocrite?" Gently nudging his neighbor, the drunkard said, "Stand up deacon, he means you this time. Stand up and take it like a man, just as I stand. It will do you good."—Ex.

THE SILK INDUSTRY.

Pennsylvania Leads in the Manufacture of That Product.

According to a despatch from Washington, this state now leads in silk manufacturing. There are 165 silk mills in the United States, and they are distributed as follows:

California, 3; Connecticut, 25; Delaware, 2; Illinois, 1; Maine, 1; Maryland, 2; Massachusetts, 13; Michigan, 1; New Hampshire, 2; New Jersey, 28, New York, 26; North Carolina, 3; Pennsylvania, 68; Rhode Island, 4; Utah, 2; Virginia, 3.

In Pennsylvania and New Jersey the progress in twenty years has been enormous. In Pennsylvania, in 1880 there were forty-nine establishments with $1,379,900 capital, employing 3,189 persons, whose total earnings for the year amounted to $678,120. In 1900 there were 121 establishments, with an aggregate capital of $20,894,023, employing 745 salaried officials, receiving $718,776 annually, and 21,028 wage earners, whose total wages aggregated $4,629,626. In New Jersey there was in 1880, 106 establishments having $6,952,325 capital, 122,549 employes receiving $4,177,745. In 1900 there were 180 establishments, $29,285,792 capital, 922 salaried officials receiving $1,144 512 and 24,157 wage-earners, receiving $9,232,532.

A Smallpox Victim at Pine Camp Meeting.

Quite an excitement was created at Pine Camp meeting when it became known that a smallpox victim had been among them. The victim was Rev. G. W. Gehman who as soon as he realized what ailed him left for his home at Mt. Carmel.

Sixty people have been vaccinated at Pine since the news became known.

As there was less danger of contracting the disease from Rev. Gehman when he left Pine than there would have been subsequently, Doctors Watson and Bell of Clinton county are of the opinion that no cases will develop from the exposure at Pine and the camp meeting will be continued.

The Shamokin Herald of Thursday gives the following account of Rev. Gehman's trip from Pine to Mt. Carmel:

"A smallpox victim, Rev. G. W. Gehman, a Menonite minister of Mt. Carmel passed through town on Reading passenger train No. 6. Not even the trainmen knew he was a full fledged sufferer from the dread disease and that alone saved a panic. Rev. Gehman was inoculated with the germ of smallpox two weeks ago when he visited one of his flock, who was dying at the municipal hospital. He was at the camp meeting of the Menonites at Pine Station, and night before last began to grow ill.

"He knew the symptoms only too well and when he began to break out with the disease Thursday morning he thought the best place for him was home. Quietly slipping away, he boarded the train for Sunbury and there went over to the Reading to continue his journey home. No one knew to what danger he subjected the public until he arrived at Mt. Carmel. There a physician took charge of him and removed him to the hospital. Rev Gehman endangered the health of people in three trains, for he changed cars at Alaska to get home. When the Mt. Carmel station agent learned the minister had smallpox, he immediately side tracked the car and wired along the main line to have the car in which the patient went from Sunbury to Alaska cut out of the train. Dr. Bronthers arrived late and thoroughly fumigated the cars."

The Rat Fought The Eagle.

A live rat was placed in the cage with the bald eagle which occupies one of the show windows of Shields' drug store the other day. Eagles are fond of rats, and this one made an effort almost immediately to clutch the rat in its cruel beak. But the rat recognized an enemy and resolved to sell its life as dearly as possible. It dodged the eagle's throat and bit it savagely on the feet and head until the representative of American liberty was bleeding from a number of wounds. Then the proud bird of freedom, realizing that its adversary was not to be trifled with, went for it with beak and claw and kept mixing things up furiously until the rat, mangled and torn, occupied a position on the inside of the eagle.—Lock Haven Democrat.

Some Fortunes.

John D. Rockefeller told a friend a few days ago that he is unable to guess within $15,000,000 of the amount of his wealth. The world is worse off regarding Solomon, for in nearly 3,000 years of figuring it is undecided whether the king of Israel was worth $5,000,000 or $100,000,000. It is now said that Abraham, who was a stranger and had not an inch of land in the country of Canaan, paid only $180 for the cave in which to bury his wife.

Claddagh Rings.

The old "poesy rings" are a much sweeter souvenir than more modern ones. A friend has one which had belonged to her great-grandmother, such a narrow gold circlet. The motto, engraved inside in old lettering, was as follows: "God above increase our love." The "Claddagh" rings of Ireland are now very difficult to procure—that is, the genuine specimens, of course. There are many imitations. These rings were heirlooms with the people of the Claddagh, a distinct gypsylike race of fishermen, and were handed down from mother to daughter as a wedding ring, a marriage being scarcely considered legal if an ordinary ring were substituted. They were made of massive gold, decorated with a heart, bearing a crown supported by two clasped hands, signifying loyalty, love, friendship.

The Unattained.

The quickest way to make any man weary of his life is to give him all his heart's desire. The struggle for the unattained is the secret of joy. Here is a man who has been giving his years to a reckless round of pleasure. Now you see him waking up to find that the deepest needs of his soul are still untouched. Or there is another man who has given twenty-five years to the accumulation of knowledge, and at last we see him, like Dr. Casaubon in "Middlemarch," dying with the stores of knowledge all around him, which he does not know how to use.

Didn't Care to Try.

A woman in a railroad station the other day had a great deal of trouble with one of her children, a boy of seven or eight, and a man who sat near her stood it as long as possible and then observed:

"Madam, that boy of yours needs the strong hand of a father."

"Yes, I know it," she replied, "but he can't help it. His father died when he was six years of age, and I've done my best to get another and failed. He can't have what I can't get. Would you care to try yourself?"

The listener had fled.

Let Them Romp.

It is a good thing to remember when the children are noisy that some day they will all be married and living far away, and the house will be as quiet as a tomb.—Atchison Globe.

Mrs. W. B. Maitland Formerly of this Place Badly Injured.

We quote the following from the Williamsport Sun the subject of the article, Mrs. Maitland, being a former resident of this place.

Mrs. W. B. Maitland is suffering from severe bruises which she sustained in a fall down stairs Wednesday evening. She is confined to her bed, and experiences much pain from her injury, Mrs. Maitland has been ill for many months, and only for the past few days had been able to be out. On Wednesday evening, between 8 and 9 o'clock, she stood at the head of the stairs and tossed some fruit to a child at the bottom. Losing her balance, she fell head long to the second step from the bottom. Her escape from broken bones or more serious injury was very fortunate.

Brungart Elected at Mifflinburg.

Prof. Edward L. Brungart, of Rebersburg, was elected the successor of Prof. C. R. Neff as principal of the Mifflinburg High school. For two years Prof. Brungart filled a similar position in Cross Forks, Potter county, and was offered an increase in salary if he would return. He, however, preferred to go to Mifflinburg and permitted himself to be elected there Tuesday evening.

—Charles Stetler, aged 39 years, was instantly killed Friday morning by being struck by the Fast mail train on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad just west of the freight station at Tyrone. His death was instantaneous and his body was taken from beneath the fire box. He was a resident of Tyrone all his life. His wife who resides at Milesburg survives him, also three sisters and one brother.

Vaccination and Smallpox.

The Sunbury school-board has adopted a resolution requiring all children who have not done so, to be vaccinated before the opening or the school term, on September 2.

Three new cases of smallpox have been reported at Mt. Carmel and one new case at Ashland.

—Sheriff Isbler is the possessor of a night blooming cereus. The plant is about six feet in height, and has about fifty buds which will bloom during this season. Friday night one of the buds developed into a beautiful and very fragrant flower. The peculiarity of the plant is that it blooms only at night, the flower lasting but a few hours when it gradually withers away.

Need More Help.

Often the over-taxed organs of digestion cry out for help by dyspepsia's pains, nausea, dizziness, headaches, liver complaints, bowel disorders. Such troubles call for prompt use of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They are gentle, thorough and guaranteed to cure. 25c at Green's Pharmacy.

GEORGE ELIOT'S FACE.

Said to Have Been a Combination of Dante and Savonarola.

A close friend of George Eliot's, writing of her personal appearance, said:

"She was not, as the world in general is aware, a handsome or even a personable woman. Her face was long; the eyes not large or beautiful in color—they were, I think, of a grayish blue; the hair, which she wore in old fashioned braids, coming low down on either side of her face, of a rather light brown. It was streaked with gray when last I saw her. Her figure was of middle height, large boned and powerful. Lewes often said that she inherited from her peasant ancestors a frame and constitution originally very robust. Her head was finely formed, with a noble and well balanced arch from brow to crown. The lips and mouth possessed a power of infinitely varied expression.

"George Lewes once said to me, when I made some observation to the effect that she had a sweet face (I meant that the face expressed great sweetness): 'You might say what a sweet hundred faces! I look at her sometimes in amazement. Her countenance is constantly changing.'

"The said lips and mouth were distinctly sensuous in form and fullness. She has been compared to the portraits of Savonarola (who was frightful) and of Dante (who, though stern and bitter looking, was handsome). Something there was of both faces in George Eliot's physiognomy.

"Lewes told us in her presence of the exclamation uttered suddenly by some one to whom she was pointed out at a place of public entertainment. 'That,' said a bystander, 'is George Eliot.' The gentleman to whom she was thus indicated gave one swift, searching look and exclaimed, sotto voce, 'Dante's aunt!' Lewes thought this happy, and he recognized the kind of likeness that was meant to the great singer of the Divine Comedy. She herself playfully disclaimed any resemblance to Savonarola. But, although such resemblance was very distant—Savonarola's peculiarly unbalanced countenance being a strong caricature of hers—some likeness there was."

DAIRY NOTES.

Clover is better than timothy for cows.

Regularity in feeding and milking is important.

To get all of the butter the cream must be uniformly ripened.

In order to secure rich milk start with a rich cow and feed her rich foods.

In small quantities cottonseed meal is a good feed, but in excess it injures the butter.

Kicking a cow that is lying down may make her get up more quickly, but it will not induce her to give any more milk.

If rock salt is kept in the yard where the cows can lick it every day, there is no danger that they will get too much at once.

One of the most important conditions of churning is the temperature of the cream. No guess should be allowed, but a good thermometer used.

Judge Davis' Wit.

The late Noah Davis, justice of the supreme court of New York, was one of many judges and lawyers who make the courtroom the scene of some of our best wit and humor. The New York Commercial Advertiser gives some illustrations.

Once a lawyer objected to a witness, but Judge Davis refused to sustain him. The lawyer cried, "But, your honor, I submit"— And here he broke off.

"That's right," said the judge quickly; "always submit. Crier, adjourn court!"

In one case over which he presided there were fifty-five distinct offenses and four counts on each offense, 220 in all.

"Well," said Judge Davis, "there are more counts than in a German principality."

A Question of Degree.

Suave Young Shopwalker—May I inquire, madam, for whom you wish to adopt mourning?

Lady—It is my brother-in-law who is dead.

Shopwalker—Certainly, madam. This way to the mitigated grief department, if you please. Thank you!—London King.

THE WAIL OF WHIP-POOR-WILL.

The water works is booming now,
And Oh, how good we feel,
For all we want is water now
To run our water wheel.

We put in meters everywhere—
For we have got the grit—
So you can bathe, wash and scrub,
And pay for what you get.

The DAILY NEWS may kick and squirm,
And John may howl and swear;
Until his brain comes oozing out,
Where once he wore his hair.

It's not in me to fight or quarrel,
And yet, I feel I'm hurt;
But if banty makes a lunge at me
I may waive my dirty shirt.

Oh, how I'd like to take him back
To the wigwam dirt and home,
Where he lost his scalp, long years ago,
Down by the standing stone.

[Although the above is a little personal, we cannot refuse its publication, especially as our good friend, Wm. T. Speer, feels somewhat agrieved over the article in our issue of July 17th.—ED.]

Ladies' Hats in Church

One of our prominent dealers in ladies' hats took issue with the writer on the article which appeared last Saturday in relation to wearing hats in church, saying that ladies hats are principally bought that the wearer may have a chance to show them off at church and if the custom of attending church bareheaded would become universal it would be a serious blow to the millinery business. This phase of the question had not suggested itself to us when we wrote the article and see how it might work a hardship to persons engaged in the business.

We have, however, a plan that would be fair to everyone and to which the ladies and milliners could take no exception. It is this: let the gentlemen occupy the front seats in church and the ladies those in the rear. By doing this everyone would be satisfied. We know the gentlemen would like the idea and, of course, the ladies would have no cause of complaint. Try it and see how it works.

RAMPOLLA'S REPLY.

The Receipt of the Cablegram from Secretary of War Root Acknowledged.

NEGOTIATIONS TO PROCEED

Along the Lines as Indicated by the Secretary—United States Government Complimented.

TAFT TO BE RECEIVED BY POPE

ROME, July 19.—The following note from the vatican was presented to Governor Taft yesterday.

"I hasten to acknowledge the receipt of the letter by which you kindly communicated to me the cablegram from Secretary Root answering my note of July 9, which explained the counter project of the vatican for the regulation of religious affairs in the Philippines. While thanking you for this important communication, I am happy to assure you that the holy see has learned with the liveliest satisfaction the high consideration in which Mr. Root, in the name of the government of the United States, holds the fitness of the measures which the vatican, independently of the solution of any economic question, designed taking to ameliorate the religious situation in the archipelago and to co-operate in the pacification of the people under American sovereignty. The measures are indicated in my memorandum of June 21 and my letter of July 9. These declarations of Mr. Root do honor to the deep political wisdom of the government of the United States, which knows how to appreciate the happy influence of the holy see for the religious and civil elevation of the people, especially Catholics.

"With equal satisfaction the pontiff has taken into account the assurances of Secretary Root that the American authorities in the Philippines and at Washington, will put forth all possible efforts to maintain the good understanding happily established with the authorities of the Catholic church. On his part the pontiff will not fail to give the apostolic delegate soon to be sent to the Philippines the most precise instructions according to my former notes.

"The main lines for future negotiations indicated in the notes having been accomplished by Secretary Root, the representatives of the vatican in the archipelago will enter into relations with the authorities in the Philippines on the four points indicated by Mr. Root at the end of his cablegram.

"The holy see does not doubt that mutual confidence, combined with the action of its representative and that of the American government, will easily produce a happy solution of the pending questions, inaugurating for that noble country a new era of peace and true progress.

"It is my agreeable duty in ending this letter to be able to render homage to the very great courtesy and high capacity with which you have filled the delicate mission which the government and president of the United States confided to you. Willingly I add that the favorable report of the negotiations must be attributed in very large part to your high personal qualities.

"While flattering myself that this first success will be a guarantee of the happy issue of ulterior negotiations in Manila,

"I have the honor to be, etc.,

(Signed) "RAMPOLLA."

Governor Taft was informed last night that the pope had fixed July 21 for his farewell audience.

Governor Taft started Saturday for Valamroossa, near Florence, where he will stay with his family until Monday, when he will return for his audience with the pope.

The Osservatore Romano, (organ of the vatican), yesterday published an official note as follows:

"The initiative of the government of the United States, with the object of arriving at an understanding with the holy see about religious questions in the Philipines, in which it showed frankness and fine political tact, has reached a happy ending after negotiation conducted on both sides in a spirit of conciliation and friendly deference. The general lines of a common accord have been drawn up to the mutual satisfaction of the parties concerned and in conformity with the proposals made to the holy see in a memorandum. These general lines will serve as a basis for further negotiations as regards details, to be conducted and brought to a conclusion at Manila between an apostolic delegate and the governor of the Philippines."

Co. "B," Home Again.

Company "B" arrived home Saturday morning at 7:30 from Camp Meade. They were a bronzed and dust begrimmed, looking party after their ten days excursion to Gettysburg but none the worse for the trip. As they marched up High Street to the Armory, with clock-like precision they remind us of old war veterans. Bellefonte should be proud of this organization, and should give it every encouragement in our power. There are times when their services may be required for our protection, and we will then realize more than we do at the present, the value of our citizen soldiery.

TOO MUCH RAIN.

Wet Weather Spoils Growth of Potatoes and Retards Growth in General.

The State crop report of the weather bureau for the past week says that the opening days of the week brought sunshine and higher temperatures; showers were general and the closing days were pleasant with cool nights. Several electrical storms, attended by heavy rains, occurred in several counties and in many localities resulted in further delay of haying and harvesting, and damage by washing and flooding.

Growing crops made satisfactory advancement and pastures and the second growth of clover show marked improvement; but reports of wet soil and the consequent retarding of the cultivation of corn and potatoes and the seeding of buckwheat are numerous.

Wheat harvest is nearing completion in some districts and just started in others, and where threshing is in progress the yield and quality is better than anticipated; rye is below normal in quantity but the kernels are generally well developed; oats now promise results far in advance of what early conditions gave reason to expect, and the second cutting of clover will be average or better.

Early potatoes are being marketed and the later plantings are not quite so far advanced as usual but apparently thrifty; garden truck of all kinds is developing nicely; tobacco plants are small but healthy; apples and peaches are "dropping" and these crops will be light; the continued wet weather has materially lessened the quantity and sweetness of the berry crop; corn looks good and some fields are in tassel, but the crop as a whole needs warmer weather to insures maturity.

Her Treasures in This World.

A story of much significance is related of a worldly, selfish young woman who on one occasion dreamed that she was in Heaven.

As she was being shown through the Holy City, examining and admiring the many beautiful residences, she paused before one exceptionally beautiful. Turning to her guide, she said, "For whom is this beautiful place?"

"Why, that's for your gardener," answered the guide.

"For my gardener? Why, he would not know what to do in such a spacious dwelling. He would be completely lost in a mansion like this! Why, he lives in such a little bit of a cottage on earth; he might do better, I give him reasonable wages, but he gives so much of it away to poor, miserable people that he has hardly enough to keep his wife and family, let alone any comforts or luxuries."

Walking on apace they came to a little bit of a cottage. "And who is this being built for?" asked the young woman.

"Why, that is for you," answered the guide.

"For me!" she exclaimed in wonder and surprise. "Why, that cannot be for me! I have always been accustomed to a mansion for a house. I could not adjust myself to such a small house!"

Still plainly but sadly answered the guide, "It is for you. Our great Architect does the very best He can with the material that is sent up to Him."

It is said that this dream had such an effect on the young woman that she determined henceforth to live a new life and thus lay up treasures in Heaven.

$4,000,000 for Relief.

John M. Burke, a retired New York merchant, on Tuesday transferred to trustees $4,000,000, the bulk of his fortune, for the relief of worthy men and women, who, notwithstanding their willingness to support themselves, have become partly or wholly unable to do so by reason of sickness or misfortune, or who have been discharged from hospitals before regaining sufficient strength to resume their regular employments. Details of this charity have not yet been announced but the money is to be used in such a way as not to increase the growth of poverty. Between fifty and sixty years ago Mr. Burke was a resident of Lawrenceville, Tioga county, where relatives of his by the name of Hill conducted a mercantile business. This great gift was made public on Mr. Burke's 90th. birthday.

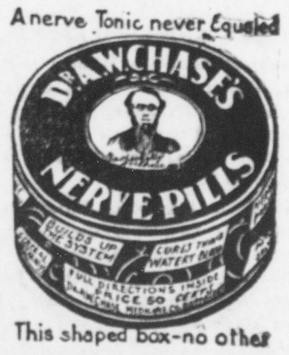
When the Nerves are Hungry.

When a child is hungry it cries; give it food it is satisfied; grows quiet or goes to sleep. When the nerves are hungry they pain; that is their cry for blood—blood that is rich and red—that brings them food, that nourishes them and gives them strength, steadiness and rest. No pain is harder to bear. Pain kills some people; it wears them out; it saps their strength until it leaves them a mental, physical, and nervous wreck. Nowhere in all its happy range are the splendid effects of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills better seen than in these cases, giving as they do to the blood all that makes it rich and pure. Strong in its power to nourish these crying, painful, hungry nerves back into their natural state again, strong, steady, quiet, and free from pain.

Altoona.

Mr. J. S. Otto, of 1929 Twelfth avenue, Altoona, Pa., says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are a grand medicine. I had been suffering for a long time with rheumatism of the joints and at times laid up. My appetite failed and I grew weak and nervous. The pills were called to my notice and I got a box and they certainly acted finely with me. The pain in the joints stopped—my appetite and strength came back and the nervousness disappeared. I am glad to recommend the medicine to others. It certainly is a fine tonic."

A nerve Tonic never Equaled



This shaped box—no other

DuBois.

Mr. J. S. Jack, of 318 South Main St., DuBois, Pa., says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are a great medicine for quieting the nerves and giving one sleep. We got a box and gave them a test in two cases and they gave steadiness of nerves, restful sleep and general strength in both cases, one a young and the other a person of advanced years. This, we think, is good evidence of their value and fitness to different ages."

BEWARE OF IMITATION. Signature and portrait of Dr. A. W. Chase on each box of the genuine. For sale by dealers, 50 cents a box, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., 257 Washington St., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale at Krumrine's drug store.

Orbison on Curtin street Mr. Beach is well known in Bellefonte, having at one time occupied the position of instructor at the Academy. He is a prominent preacher in New Jersey, and occupies the pulpit of one of the largest and most influential churches in that State.

Last Fall he was sent to Paris by a committee having in charge christian work among the English and Americans in the Latin Quarter of that city, this being the resort of young men pursuing the study of the arts, and is located about three miles from the American church, Rev. Dr. Thurber, pastor. His labor among these young men was of a social and evangelistic character, and fruitful to a great degree. Mr. Beach's whole personnel being calculated to attract young men to him, his fervent, christian character commanding the respect and confidence of all with whom he comes in contact.

He was accompanied to Paris by his wife and family and also by Mr. Francis Atwood of this town. They will remain on the Continent, principally in Switzerland, until Spring. Mr. Beach landed on the 13th instant and will resume his pastorate at once, his congregation having kindly granted him leave of absence until such time as he would return.

Bride a Harvest Prize.

Farmer James Woolsey, of near Wichita, Kansas, has succeeded in having his 5000 acre wheat field cut before the yellow grain grew musty, but it cost him his daughter. He gave her as a prize to the young harvester who did the greatest amount of work in a specified time. Willis Rodway, a young mechanic from Illinois, won. Rodway and Anna Woolsey were married.

The Woolsey farm is one of the very largest in Pratt county, and the scarcity of harvest workers in that section was a weight to the farmer's mind. His wheat grew dead ripe and there was no one to help him cut it. Then he devised the plan of offering as a bride to the most successful harvest worker his nineteen-year old daughter. She was dutiful as well as good looking.

The men came by the score. She was given the privilege of rejecting any of the contestants she personally disliked and many were thus ruled out. The contest was spirited.

It lasted three days. Rodway worked ten hours a day, cut 160 acres and wore out three good teams.

The Mosquito Question.

Bellefonte is afflicted, at the present time, with as many mosquitoes as Atlantic City can boast of, in its palmiest days, and every one is suffering from them. One lady told the writer that she had seventeen bites on her arms, and gentlemen wearing low shoes have ankles swollen to the size of stove pipes. As we have never had a visitation of this kind before, an effort should be made to ascertain the cause. Some people are inclined to the belief, that it is the stagnant water in the old canal, which has brought them. Some think they come from the lake at the Fair Grounds, while others think it a result of the eruption of Mt. Pelee. Whatever the cause, they are here, and are here for business. As it is a matter under the control of the Board of Health we respectfully refer the subject to that body of officials.
